Fierce Debate in the House on the Kuklux Reports.

Congress Deliberately Insulted by the Minority.

Sumner's Resolution on the Sale of Arms to France.

Telling Speech of Senator Conkling on its Animus.

Passage of the Bill Removing the Tea and Coffee Duty.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The report of the Kuklux Committee was presented in the Senate today, and was accompanied by the evidence taken before the full Committee here in Washington, and by the Subcommittee sent to North Carolina. The evidence taken before the other Subcommittees is not yet ready to be presented. A half-hour's debate arose upon the presentation of the minority report, Mr. SCOTT taking occasion to refer to some statements which seemed designed to put the action of the majority of the Committee in a false light. Messrs. BAYARD and BLAIR both disclaimed any intention to imply in the report that the majority had not acted with fairness, and explained that the seeming impression referred to applied to facts rather than to persons. The minority report was then received, and the bill reported from the majority of the Committee, to extend the extraordinary powers conferred by the present law upon the President to the end of the next session of Congress, was read twice and placed upon the calendar.

THE REPORT IN THE HOUSE.

There was a remarkable scene in the House this afternoon, on the presentation of the Kuklux report in that body. After the passage of the Free Tea and Coffee bill, Judge POLAND was recognized, and proceeded to make the report of the Joint Committee on the Insurrectionary States. Mr. BECK was about to follow, on the part of the minority, when Mr. SCOFIELD, of Pennsylvania, a member of the Committee, called the attention of the House to the extraordinary language of the minority, when they first say they have not seen the report of the majority, and then proceeded to characterize it thus: "The conduct and report of the majority of this Committee, as inaugurated, continued and reported, is the greatest outrage, the foulest calumny, ever perpetrated or circulated upon or against a helpless people by their rulers." This created amazement in the House, when Mr. BECK speedily came to the rescue by asserting that that was not in the report. Mr. SCOFIELD held up the printed copy, and read from it. Mr. BECK, with apparent nervousness, then said that the objectionable words had been stricken out by the minority at a meeting this morning. This created still further excitement, and about half the members of the House were on their feet, crowding into the area in front of the Speaker. Mr. BECK then stated that the sentence had been so amended as to read "that the KUKLUX bill and the proceedings thereunder are the greatest outrage, the foulest calumny, &c." Mr. BINGHAM instantly made the point that this was an unparliamentary reflection upon the majority of the House which had passed the law, and he objected to the reception of the minority report, which objection Speaker BLAINE promptly sustained. This threw the Democrats into extreme consternation, for they saw that their precious document, which has been loaded for the Presidential campaign, was thus doomed to utter obscurity. Mr. COX, Mr. MORGAN and other Democrats set up a demand for their rights, when the Speaker reminded them that no such thing as the right to present a minority report existed under the rules; that such presentation was a matter purely of grace, and if objection was made, the minority could not submit their report. A stormy scene ensued, in which the Speaker had occasion for sharp use of the gavel, and for merited rebuke of aspersions on the correctness of his rulings. Finally, as the wind-up of the row, Sunset COX moved to suspend the rules, so as to receive the report just as it stood, which failed—yeas 116, nays 67—not two-thirds. Gen. BANKS then threw oil on the troubled waters by proposing a resolution that the minority report should be received when coupled in such language as does not reflect upon the Committee or the majority of the House, which passed without a division.

WAYS AND MEANS.

In the Ways and Means Committee this morning Mr. ROGERS, of New-York, offered a resolution repealing the Income tax, which was lost—yeas 4, nays 8, as follows: Yeas—Messrs. DAWES, KELEY, ROGERS, BROOKS. Nays—Messrs. MAYNARD, FERRIS, BURCHARD, KERR, BECK. This substantially dissipates all prospect of a repeal of the tax. It will have to be paid this year and then disappear by expiration of the law. By analyzing the vote of the Committee it will be seen that the sections of the country, which pay comparatively none of the tax, impose it upon those sections which pay nearly the whole. Hon. AMASA WALKER appeared before the Committee, and made an argument in favor of the remposition of the tax. The question is so close that those who oppose the repeal, but favor the continuance of the tax with the expiration of the law, hold the balance of power, and will prevent such a calamity as the re-enactment of the tax.

SUMNER'S RESOLUTION.

The discussion of Mr. SUMNER'S resolution was continued in the Senate today by Mr. CONKLING, who spoke from 1:30 to 4 o'clock. The galleries were fuller than at any previous time during the debate, and as an evidence of the effectiveness of the speech it may be added that there had been no departure among the auditors when Mr. CONKLING took his seat, as in other day during the discussion has the interest been sustained so as to keep the galleries full till so late as then. In the opening of his speech the forcing upon the Senate of long political debates to the exclusion of the consideration of the ordinary business of legislation was charged heavily upon those who are responsible. In the present case the Senator from Massachusetts would not be content with investigation but must have debate. He would not have business, but talk. If he had simply wanted an investigation, he would have moved it by presenting the resolution and asking the passage thereof. There would not have been a word of debate or opposition. The prosecution of charges before investigation had been made to impress the country, and they could not, of course, so without answer. One side having been heard upon the country is advised the other side must also be heard. The impression the resolution had been designed to produce was evident from extracts from the Times and Sun, which he read to prove that our Government had invited Germany were then England had assured us in the late war. An editorial from a recent copy of the Times he stated is so vile and called upon the Senate, and especially Mr. SUMNER, to hear witness to its calumnies, which he could well do, since its falsehoods were transparent and glaring. He contended Mr. SUMNER of connecting abuses were that disinterestedness in pretending that no one but himself knew of his intention to offer the resolution. The substance of the resolution had been published in Boston, Cincinnati and Chicago on the same morning. It was offered with the statement that it would be brought forward. The insinuation of action of SUMNER in furnishing information to Germany against our Government was intended to serve personal and political purposes was a grave charge. Some of the residents of the law under which their communication with CHAMBERLIN is possibly punishable as a high crime and misdemeanor created a sensation in the galleries. The amendment which Mr. CONKLING offered the other day will bring out the truth in regard to this part of the affair, and it is admitted to have a serious aspect. Mr. SUMNER took this part of the speech with an air of bravado, but Mr. SUMNER looked very grave. To CHAMBERLIN, whose representations have led SUMNER and SCHURZ into this unfortunate position, he applied the following; language, with full effect: "If, I say, I think, DIOGENES DALGETTY who boasted of his loyalty. He said that he was true to every Government so long as it was his interest to be so. I hope that this standard of loyalty will not be for him for any fitted or entitled Prominent for and when having acted as the spy of LOUIS NAPOLEON, is ready in turn to be the spy of the French Republic, or of the sons of LOUIS PHILIPPE. I hope it will not be too high for those who are seeking to bamboozle our Government with the mind in which they are dredging for claims against American citizens." Mr. SCHURZ interrupted two or three times with indifferent success, and finally concluded he would be safer in delaying the answer to his sharp arraignment till he could make some preparation and have the floor to himself. There are some mysterious whispers tonight about new and startling evidence. It is marked that Mr. TRUMBULL is very little in his seat during these debates, and it is currently reported that he will not enter the debate at all. There are no claims that Mr. SUMNER will return to the charge, though it would be strange if he did not undertake some defense of himself. Meantime the calumnies of certain papers are redoubled, and the country is assured against the truth that the attacks have failed, and failed most miserably. Not even can the assailants muster up courage to reiterate the lies they have uttered. Let us have investigation, says the great body of the Senate; let us have, first, the truth, both to prevent the recommitment of GRANT, say SUMNER, SCHURZ and TRUMBULL.

CIVIL RIGHTS.

Mr. FRYE, in behalf of Mr. HOOPER, offered the Civil Rights bill for the House today, the question being the pending question on its passage. An attempt was made to rule out the bill on the ground that no previous notice had been given. This failing, Mr. BURDETTE, in order to drive it over until next Monday, moved that the bill be rejected. The calling of the yeas and nays consumed the remainder of the morning hour, and answered the purpose, although Mr. BURDETTE'S motion was lost by 20 to 116. Mr. BLAIR, of New-Hampshire, was the only Democrat who stood by the bill. The vote was a clear indication that the bill will pass next Monday. It does not essentially differ from Mr. SUMNER'S bill, except that the Chinese are excluded from the protection it guarantees by substituting citizens for persons.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The House Select Committee on the Civil Service, today, authorized Mr. WILLARD to report his bill prohibiting members of Congress from recommending persons to office except when asked to do so, and that they do this without any recommendation. A majority of the Committee probably favor the principle of the bill, but their action is intended to leave the form of proposed legislation for the future determination of the House. The House will be asked to fix a day for the early consideration of the bill.

PUBLIC LANDS.

The House Committee on Public Lands today agreed to favorably report the Senate bill setting aside the Yellowstone region as a public reservation. There is a doubt of the passage of this very proper measure by the House.

THE CUSTOM-HOUSE COMMITTEE.

The Senate Investigating Committee did not have a meeting today, owing to the absence of a quorum. Senator BUCKINGHAM sent word that he was sick with gastric fever, and his return was uncertain. Senator HOWE has been sick ever since his return, and was not well enough to speak today. The Committee therefore stands adjourned until Senators HOWE or BUCKINGHAM shall be well enough to resume their sessions, which will probably be this week.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

In the contest for delegates in the South Carolina State Convention to choose delegates to the Philadelphia Convention, it is learned here to-night that C. C. HOWEE, who aspired to guide the political destinies of Charleston County, was left entirely out in the cold. It is said that now at home he is politically dead.

MR. HALE.

Mr. CHARLES HALE was sentenced today in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for contempt of court. The offenses of Mr. HALE were of the most extraordinary character, and he met with the defeat that it could not have avoided. The triumph of Mr. HALE after thorough investigation, is such a vindication of the Administration that he may thank the Investigating Committee for having set Mr. SCHURZ to oppose his confirmation.

MRS. JOHNSON.

Mrs. Johnson, who was discharged the other day from custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, having refused before a Congressional committee, knowing the offense for which she was indicted, was today brought before the Court again, and an amendment to the law having been discovered which was applicable to the case, he was put upon trial. He was found guilty, and sentenced to be confined in the District Jail and a fine of $40,000. The present defaulters in Treasurer SPRAGUE'S office are, therefore, now serving out their terms of punishment, the law having been speedily and severely applied.

FREE TEA AND COFFEE.

The House today, in pursuance of the intention foreshadowed in these dispatches yesterday, put through the free tea and coffee bill under what and sort, by suspending the rules, discharging the Committee of the Whole from its further consideration, and passing the same by a vote three-votes, all in one motion, which swooping and detestable piece of legislation can be done only on Monday of all the days of the week. This it must be borne in mind, is the second time, and the only Congress that has passed a precisely similar bill. In March last we had such a bill was sent to the Senate, where it was referred to the Finance Committee, and they duly reported that it was impolitic to repeal entirely the duties on tea and coffee. Such will be the fate of this bill. This action of the House releases the Ways and Means Committee from embarrassment on the tariff, and leaves them free to go ahead and frame a bill of general retrenchment, which they will do. On this vote, out of thirty-eight in the negative, there were found but four Democrats who had the courage, to cast a vote which might lead to plausible comment on the stump. Previously to this a similar resolution from Mr. HALE to put salt and coal on the free list, failed by not so far as two-thirds.

THE REDEMPTION BILL.

The bill which has passed the Senate authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to withdraw and redeem $3,000,000 per month of the three-per-cent certificates of indebtedness, and which the House Committee of Banking and Currency will probably fail in their Committee, and thus fail to pass the House. There has been much hesitation in making stress as to the effect of this measure, but it is now practically unfounded.

Dispatch to the Associated Press:

A DIFFICULTY.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in a letter to the Postmaster-General of the Navy, making certain inquiries relative to the non-compliance with contract tobacco stamps at the Brooklyn Navy-yard, says the law now in force requires all tobacco to have attached to the package stamps indicating the tax paid thereon. The absence of such stamps is cause for seizure and forfeiture. These stamps are issued by this office, and furnished only to Collectors of Internal Revenue. They are charged to each Collector as so much money, and the Collector not under the Government dealing with the United States Treasury for their money value, or by returning the stamps. Tobacco in the hands of the Government or any of its agents must be stamped before it is paid. If it has not already been stamped, the Government is the largest dealer in tobacco. If, therefore, the tobacco to be delivered that it will not sell for a sum equal to the value of the stamps required to give it currency in the market, it cannot legally be sold, and had better be destroyed. If a purchaser can be found who will purchase the tobacco on the usual and after stamps before it is returned, it may be sold; or it the Government can sell it for a price exceeding the tax —38 cents per pound—and from the proceeds purchase and affix stamps, then it may be sold. But if neither of these modes can be full filled, then the tobacco cannot be legally sold and the Government cannot well afford to violate the law in respect to requirements for the violation of which by private individuals it is every day bringing suits and imposing fines and penalties.

The delegation also called on Secretaries of War, the Treasury and the Navy, also on Commissioner DOUGLASS and Vice-President COLFAX and the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, relative to the same matter. Gen. WARNER, of Philadelphia, was their spokesman.

EQUAL RIGHTS.

Contrast Scene Twixt a Richmond and Gas Company.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 19.—A committee of colored citizens waited on the stockholders' meeting of our City Railway Company here, today, and requested that the Company cease to make distinctions in the street-cars on account of color, and remove the white bells from the cars that have by that sign been set apart heretofore for whites. The Company voluntarily acceded to all that was asked, and henceforth the street-cars of Richmond will be dedicated to equal rights. It is proper to say that the Company made the request in consequence of late very certain judgments obtained against it by elected colored passengers.

THE SCRANTON DEFALCATION.

O'Connor, the Embezzler, in Jail at Wilkesbarre.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Feb. 19.—Anticipating the arrival of JOHN O'CONNOR in this city this afternoon, hundreds of his old acquaintances congregated in the vicinity of the depot. He arrived in New-York this morning at 6 o'clock from Savannah, and was immediately transferred to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western mail-train at Hoboken. The officers of the road to avoid the crowd removed him from the train at the upper end of town, and rapidly drove him to Alderman FULLER'S office, where he pleaded guilty to embezzling the Company's funds. Bail not being forthcoming, he was at once placed on a train and locked up in Wilkesbarre Jail to await trial.

CANADIAN INDEPENDENCE.

The Halifax Chronicle Reiterates Its Story of the Secret Treaty.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 19.—The Chronicle, in reply to an editorial in the Toronto Globe ridiculing the story of the secret treaty, reasserts its authenticity, and says it is absolutely informed that it was signed after the conclusion of the Washington negotiations, by Lord de GREY for the British Government and Sir John A. MACDONALD, as Premier of Canada, on the part of the Governor-General. The understanding upon between the two Governments some years previously, and so far as Great Britain was concerned, had been formally definitely settled as the basis of the future colonial policy. When Lord DUFF Sing since published his draft of the treaty, it was not thought advisable to reduce the understanding to the shape of a formal treaty. But the Canadian Ministry, the Government of the Dominion, the Imperial Government, and the Washington Treaty Board, as was thought, finally relieved England from further and further entanglements on this continent. The Chronicle says that only Lord Lyons, Sir John A. MACDONALD and Sir George E. CARTIER are aware of the existence of the treaty, and circumstances which indicate the fact of its existence.

THE SNOW IN THE WEST.

Great Suffering at Peoriaque—Many Lives Lost—Better a Hundred Years Black.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Feb. 19.—A distressing incident of the terrible storm that have swept over the region during the present Winter is connected with the discovery of the remains of Dr. HALL, of Osceola County, Iowa. He was lost in the terrible storm of three weeks ago, and though every possible effort was made to find the body it was only discovered four days ago, when a dog belonging to the family brought in a portion of one of the unfortunate's legs. The animal was followed, and the mutilated remains of the unfortunate man were found only half a mile distant from the house. Intelligence reaches Sioux City of the destruction of the stock of the Peoriaque Ranch, in Dakota, on the night of January. Jesse W. Sawyer's wagon-train, which left the Westbone, Assay, for Sawyer's Ranch, a distance of 30 miles, was 3 weeks making the trip. The train encountered snow-drifts, many of which were 100 feet deep, and extending a great distance through which it was necessary to force a passage by shoveling. The weather was so intensely cold that every wheel was covered over with ice, and the teamsters, either as to reasons of them quite seriously. The party suffered greatly, but no lives were lost.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 19.—A message from Assistant Superintendent Clinton, at Fort Laramie, says the train on the Transcontinental Railway left there yesterday, and that the cold is extreme. On the other hand the telegraph reports that very much of the telegraph poles have fallen with several miles of wire. The most fearful reports of all subjects are described by the passengers of their experience in the snow storm. All agree that there was much need and distress for the sufferers either as to wages or incompetency of the railroad officers.

The weather is cold in each passenger. California now presents no green fields advanced at the Northern mines, and the snow extends down to the foothills. The Supreme Court decided against the Sioux Bonds.

The Lynchburg (Virginia) continues to appeal to the Legislature to permit the people of Virginia to vote upon the question of holding a Convention, that they may have an opportunity to say whether they will vote at the October election, if present, for modifying their existing indebtedness.

The Mobile Register expresses the opinion that, after all, the soundest Democracy is to be found in the New-England States, notably in New-Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, where it shows it has, if it should be, been tried as by fire in the crucible of adversity, and have come out of defeats, year after year, like pure and refined gold. CARPENTER, of South Carolina, today addressed the people at Goffstown and vicinity, eight miles from Manchester, from the standpoint of a Conservative Republican. An extra train left this evening, taking several hundreds of citizens, returning about 11 P. M. He said the Colonel was a faithful President, and that he had listened too long to a certain Senator from this State. Two tickets for delegates are in the field. A printed letter from Attorney-General CHAMBERLAIN, urging the renomination of President GRANT, circulated in the Convention.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20—1 A. M.—The uniform barometric pressure which existed Sunday night has continued very generally east of the Mississippi River, but the barometer has fallen from Texas to the upper lakes. Clear or clearing weather, with light north and northwest winds, has prevailed in Florida and the Atlantic States. South and southeast winds, with rising temperature, are now reported from the Mississippi Valley.

PROBABILITIES.

An area of low barometer will probably continue to develope Tuesday over the valley of the Upper Mississippi and southward to Texas. The central low will move northeastward, thence eastward toward Illinois with southerly winds and increasing cloudiness from the Lakes to the Gulf; northerly winds veering to the south-east prevail on the South Atlantic coast, and north-westerly winds in New-England and New-York; partially cloudy and clear weather continues generally throughout the Atlantic States; southeasterly winds and cloudy weather prevail on the Texas coast by Tuesday afternoon. Danger signals are not anticipated for Tuesday morning.

LOUIS, Feb. 19.—There are now some thirty steamers, about fifty barges, a dozen ferry-boats and two-hundred, also large wharf-boats, which with cargoes are valued at nearly $2,000,000, are lying between the sudden place, but appearances of danger are very much nearly broken up. Efforts are now being made with powerful steamers to open the river to Cairo. The weather is favorable, with the river rising above.

METHODIST CONVENTION.

Discussion in Reference to the Revision of the City Mission two Conferences.

A meeting of members of the Methodist Episcopal Churches this City was held last evening at the Seventh-street Church. The Convention was called to consider a matter declared to be of vital interest to the spiritual welfare of the City. About twenty-five years ago the authorities of the Church divided the City into two parts, placing all that portion lying south of the Tuesday-week and the Bowery in the New-York East Conference, and leaving the rest of the City in the New-York Conference. The meeting last evening was for the purpose of the discussion of the General Conference, which meets in May next, to obtain the time and place the whole City in one district, the same to be affiliate the benefit of either Conference. The church was well filled, and at the time for the meeting to order Mr. Wm. E. Parson took the chair, and after devotional exercises Rev. Dr. CURRY was elected permanent Chairman, and Rev. S. M. ADAMS and Wm. K. PARSON, Secretaries. The call for the meeting was read, and on motion of Mr. PARSON a committee of five was ordered to prepare resolutions for the consideration of the meeting. Those were duly nominated and elected, as follows: J. H. DOUGLAS, Chairman, Chairman and Messrs. Post, Cameron, Hammond and Brown. The Committee retired, and soon returned and reported the following resolution:

Resolved, In the judgment of this Convention, that the division of the City between two Conferences is detrimental to the interests of Methodism, and that permanent Conference should be established.

A lively debate ensue participated in by many brethren. Rev. Mr. ROSS, who did not concur in the report, stated the view of the minority of the Committee so to that the line should be moved to Fourth-avenue. Here a substitute was offered looking to no action. Rev. Dr. FARRAR, of the Bedford-street Church, also presented figures to prove the necessity for a division of the City. Rev. Dr. DIXON, of the Sunday-school and Church Extension Society, made an appeal in favor of the same action.

Mr. OGDENSBURG made a speech in favor of the resolution, showing the needs of the City without from the Lord's Tuesday-week. The vote was then taken, and it was then voted on, and it voted in favor and 11 voted against its adoption. The officers of the meeting were elected to present the action of the General Conference, and the Convention adjourned, with the benediction by Rev. Dr. Brown. The drift of the discussion seemed to indicate that the lay element in the Methodist Episcopal Church is beginning to show more interest in the management of its affairs.

THE PERILS OF THE SEA.

Narrow Escape of the Steamer New-York—A Perilous Voyage.

The steamer New-York, of the North German line, experienced on her last trip from Bremen to this port, weather that is seldom met with in the Atlantic. The New-York left Bremen on the 7th of January, with a full cargo and some 300 passengers. The first three days at sea were comparatively mild, but on the 1st of February a gale that eventually led to a hurricane set in, and lasted throughout the greater part of the voyage. On the 6th the barometer fell to an extraordinary low degree, Capt. VON EMPEREN, who was on deck at the time, ordered all sails furled and the hatches battened down. This was done, and not a minute too soon; as in a few seconds the wind buried the sea over the vessel. Three days the hurricane continued. On the 9th, the storm having lulled, the first officer, with the assistance of Mr. Atkinson, ordered a second attempt to furl sails, and CHRISTIAN SCHMIDT, while descending, lost his balance and was crushed to death by falling against the guards of the deck.

The passengers, terrified by the force of the storm, commingled together, and, despite the laws of the ship, refused to be separated, even refusing at times to partake of the meals provided by the steward. On the night of the 10th, while Capt. VON EMPEREN, the first officer and a German lady from Hanover were standing on the quarter-deck, a rifle wave struck them, and the lady VON EMPEREN attempted to catch the last, but missed her. The wave washed him against the bulwarks, and by clinging to a rattling he saved his life. The chief officer grasped the lady around the waist, and by clinging hold of the mizzen rigging saved both his own and the lady's life. The lady's dress, which the officer was standing was torn from its pocket by the wave, together with the Bible. The water also flooded the companion way and entered the first cabin in an immense volume. The same at that time was thrown from the deck, and the steerage passengers were forced to bunks, children screamed, and men and women to pray. Age gave up in despair, imagining that the brave steamer was in the eye of foundering. This last wave, however, proved to be the worst of the hurricane, and the vessel, all water-logged, after drifting about helplessly, reached Halifax on the 16th. Here the vessel was revictualed and renovated, and she arrived safely at the harbor yesterday afternoon.

The New-York will have to undergo considerable repairs before she again crosses the Atlantic.

The Business Administration Speech of Gov. Noyes, of Ohio.

At the meeting of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee and other active members of the party in Columbus, a few nights ago, Gov. NOYES was called upon to speak, and as he rose was greeted with hearty applause. He referred to the success of a year ago, and said that the Republicans of the country were divided on various questions. The question of the annexation of San Domingo had caused a division of sentiment. A portion were joined to the President and some to Mr. SUMNER. We did not dispute from sentiment that the annexation was one of difficulty and danger, but we decided to sink all personal preferences on minor questions. The result was such a victory as which Ohio voted for the best doubtful States. Ohio had proved to be the head of the Republican column. We are here to signal under the paper purpose that we can succeed a year ago. There are no divisions to be healed and no disgrunts to be victory. The time was ripe for victory. We will adhere to the old principles which helped us to so many victories; we are ready to say that as far as we are concerned, we have no need of any new departure. The nation will soon have to decide whether the grand principles of liberty and of reform shall be continued, or the Democratic party shall be allowed to return to power. Of the result there can be no reasonable doubt, and we are here for a social family talk among ourselves, which can not possibly be reported outside. I feel free to say that for one, I shall be satisfied with what Congress now is to the movement, dissatisfied with President Grant, the representative of Ulysses Scott Grant. We have on our two State ticket one whom we delight to honor, not only because of his patriotic course heretofore, but for his high character as home and citizen. For one I could be satisfied with any one on a ticket of such character, but I am sure we shall be sure of a magnificent victory next Fall, if the Republican Party shall be led by GRANT as Commander-in-Chief, and DEAVISON to second on the ticket.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

SENATE.... WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 10.

REPORTS.

Among the several reports presented today were the majority report of the Finance Committee, accompanied by testimony, and by a bill to extend the operation of the law of May, 1872, to enforce the collection of the balance of duties, but until the end of the next session of Congress, and the minority report against the passage of a general, but not universal Amnesty bill. Mr. EDMUNDS presented the Revenue Reports. Both of which were ordered to be printed. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, from the Committee of Public Buildings and Grounds, reported without amendment the House bill for the construction of a public building at Albany, N. Y., for the post, Postal and Internal Revenue Offices, and for the purchase of a site for a public building at Cincinnati.

Among the other bills introduced, was one directing the Postmaster-General to provide immediately, by contract or otherwise, for the transportation of the California mails across the blockaded portion of the Panama Railroad.

SUPPLIES APPROPRIATION.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of Mr. BUMNER's resolution. Mr. CONKLING said that five months of the Fortieth had already passed, and the business of the country waited while debate for political effect went on. The Appropriation bills were made to wait the revision of the tariff, which would strike forty million dollars from the revenue, and reduce the Internal Revenue Department to a skeleton. Was made to wait; while the Senate was called to waste its time in political debate. But it could be avoided. The rule was, that a Senator could not be questioned elsewhere for words uttered in the Senate; and use a Senator maliciously, improperly, or slanderously, and place them in a false position before the nations of the earth, and he might do it either in plain words or by insinuation—the last always the most deadly language in the slanderer's vocabulary. The SENATOR from Massachusetts (SUMNER) was responsible for this waste of time. He would not have transgressed, he might have debate. He had himself asked, when he introduced this resolution, that it should be over; but this Senator had not protested against the Senator from Illinois (Mr. CONKLING) when he took up and handed to the desk a statement in the New-York Tribune, that the partisans of the President in the Senate had acted partially in the pending resolution, which, he said, showed the violence done to truth in a base and rutilating spirit. He solicited the Senator from Illinois (Mr. CONKLING) to read the statement and comment on this subject were not inspired for political effect. What then was their object? Was it to prejudice the case, or to assist France and French claim agents in procuring claims against and arouse resentment against the executive officers of our Government? Or was it to convince the General of America that such Republican officials and Grecian French blood-money in a war in which the heart of the whole Republican Party, and the Government, was with the Union? Was it to make the Government of the United States responsible for the waste of time? He would not have transgressed, but he felt authorized to say, was to furnish the French Government or its agents with materials to be used against American merchants in the Courts of France. Was it to convince the Senate that Senator ought to allow itself to be used for such purposes? Did the Senator feel called upon to do the work of Mr. CONKLING? It was perhaps not his to investigate, and he had no guess, but the investigation change to a court-room examination. [Laughter.] He then referred to the amendment offered by him on Friday, directing the Committee to inquire whether any Senator, ex-Senator or citizen has been in collusion with any French agent or by its relation to this matter. He read a Vienna dispatch which stated that any citizen, other than a citizen of the United States, directly or indirectly, or through any foreign Government or agent, or in any manner, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than $10,000 and be imprisoned not more than three years.

That, said Mr. CONKLING, is a good statute. It was signed by a Massachusetts President. Was it ever known whether it has been enforced. Was correspondence and communication have been commenced and carried on with a foreign Government, or the agents or officers thereof, in the close to Senate. Whether it has been done, with the intent denounced in the statute, for no one knows. Let there be light on this point, whose others. It may be that the citizens of the United States who are serving also the Government with England is pending, knowing that the Geneva Tribunal is a tribunal to settle Germany's Emperor is a mediator between Germany and France, and that Germany's Emperor is a mediator between the United States and Great Britain, who holds correspondence with France, and who holds correspondence with Great Britain, who holds correspondence with France, and who, if it was proper for the Senate to do so, and who, if it was proper for the Senate to do so, and who, if it was proper for the Senate to do so

The old tactics of the Tammany thieves are being revived. Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN, who alone stands between the citizens and the reckless robbery formerly practiced under the signatures of CONNOLLY and HALL, is daily bullied and insulted by a crowd of roughs—not honest working men, but hired gangs, led by forgers and ruffians. The Tweed crew expect to regain power ere long. Mayor HALL, they say, will bring them through all their troubles. ANDREW H. GREEN is to be ousted, and TOM FIELDS, or somebody of the same stamp, put in his place. Will the citizens submit to this? If not, let them go to the meeting at Cooper Institute to-night, and make the scoundrels who are trying in vain to attack them understand that they are resolved never to be ruled again by a horde of banditti.

In thirty-five months President GRANT has reduced the national debt $37,878,810, insuring an annual saving to the tax-payers, in interest, of $17,506,024. Can a bolting Republican, elected by Democratic repudiators, be expected to improve on this?

Mr. CONKLING yesterday replied to the elaborate speeches of Messrs. SUMNER and SCHURZ on the sale of arms during the French and German war. His exposure of the motive for the introduction of the preposterous preamble, which no Senator could vote for without declaring the country disgraced, was very scathing, and added to the discomfort already brought on the authors of the resolution. It cannot have been pleasant to Mr. SUMNER to have had the fact published that the Democratic Committees are flooding New-Hampshire with his speeches. But that is a slight humiliation compared to the growing popular conviction that he has utterly forgotten patriotism in an unsuccessful attempt to gratify his personal and political resentment. Moreover, he bids fair to have his fill of investigation. His scandalous preamble will be voted down by a majority that will further mortify him, but the investigation he called for he will get, with the addition of an inquiry as to whether he, or any other Senator, has been committing a penal offence in "carrying on a correspondence with the agent of a foreign Government, with intent to influence the conduct of a foreign Government to defeat the measures of the United States." No one doubts that the conduct of Messrs. SUMNER and SCHURZ has been disgraceful; the question yet remains whether it has not been unlawful.

A bill has been devised by the Committee of Ninety to provide for the needs of the City in the matter of quick transit. The Committee propose to create a Commission of Railways to take charge of the whole matter, receive proposals, grant franchises, supervise the building of roads, whether under-ground or above ground, steam roads or other, and to superintend their running, the fares to be collected on them, &c. The idea of the Committee is worth considering, and the question is one second in importance to none except that of good general government, but a bill embodying such great powers should be very carefully guarded—more carefully than this one appears to be.

The Committees having under consideration the bills affecting Erie, have now a week to consider their duties. Will they take the trouble to ask their constituents what they think of the following notorious facts? In less than four years the Erie Ring has contemptibly increased the capital and debt of the Erie Road $62,292,000, and there is no explanation of what has been done with this enormous sum. It is believed that they have stolen it. In addition to this, the Ring, with this great increase of capital, do not account for the income of the road, which shrank from the net amount of $1,042,000 in 1867, to only $112,665 in 1871. Meantime the Ring have grown very wealthy, and the stockholders would like to get the property in their own hands again. Perhaps the Committees, after consulting their constituents, can see their way clear to report the bills which enable the stockholders to gratify this very natural desire.

Another Judicial Farce.

There are few intelligent men in the community who will not be shocked at the outrageous burlesque on the forms of justice which Judge BEDFORD permitted to be enacted yesterday in the Court of General Sessions. We are accustomed in this City to strange scenes in Courts of Justice. We have Judges who make up for their deficiency in learning by an abundance of bawdy jests and filthy oaths. We have others who are the bosom friends of pimps and thieves, and take care to be on the bench whenever any of their "chums" are in "trouble." We have others who try to win public confidence by loud protestations of their desire to do their duty, while having a secret understanding with the knaves brought before them. We have two or three, let us hope, who possess a conscience—and we have tried to think that Judge BEDFORD was one of them. But such a scene as that which took place yesterday is almost without parallel in the recent disgraceful history of our Courts. It was the most audacious and shameful insult ever leveled at the community.

Mayor HALL—who signed all the fraudulent warrants by which the people have been so wickedly robbed, and who deliberately and repeatedly defended them after their true character had been thoroughly exposed—this man, we say, presented himself yesterday before a Judge who is his intimate friend, and went through a performance which had evidently been elaborately prepared beforehand, and which constitutes the most impudent act yet committed by the most impudent man in the world. It had been settled that his trial could not take place in consequence of the absence of Judge DALY. That was definitely understood days ago. But with a cunning which could only be developed by years of personal familiarity with the worst criminals in the land, HALL went down to the Court to insist on his instant trial. The preliminaries were all arranged. The Court was packed with HALL's friends. When he appeared they set up a shout of applause. The Attorney-General, who was to prosecute, literally found himself in a den of thieves. When he opened his mouth he was hissed. When HALL struck an attitude and began to spout, his voice was half drowned in cheers. "If my deadliest enemy were on that bench," exclaimed the confederate of TWEED and SWEENY, "I would have the case tried before him." In the meantime it was his most intimate friend who sat on the Bench. It was perfectly safe to demand an instant trial. The Attorney-General exclaimed that the postponement had been agreed upon—that neither papers nor counsel for the prosecution were in Court—that consequently the trial could not possibly go on. But what is so fine as to see an accused person beating his breast, calling Heaven to witness that he is innocent, and crying out for an instant trial? Is not that enough to move the sympathies of mankind? Would any guilty man dare to call for a speedy trial, especially with his bosom friend on the bench? The Judge did his best to keep up the farce. "The accused feels confident of his innocence," said he in his most touching accents. A Judge could not say very much more to show that he had already settled the case in his own mind. Why not get it over pleasantly, there and then, and let the whole Court adjourn for a drink at Mayor HALL's expense? The accused believed in his own innocence. He wanted to be tried by his "bitterest enemy," or failing that, by his dearest friend, which would answer the purpose a little better. What has justice to do with such an affair as this? Why not let MOORE, the emigrant swindler, come into Court some fine morning, in the absence of prosecuting officers and evidence, and insist on being "tried" that very moment? He, too, is confident of his innocence. That alone ought to be enough to acquit him. Is it not a barbarous thing even to subject a man to legal prosecution who is known by the Judge to be conscious of his own rectitude?

The Attorney-General stood firm, but it appears from the report that the trial would actually have been forced on but for the scruples of the Assistant District-Attorney, whose practised nerves were a little startled by this monstrous travesty of justice. HALL went on spouting wild rubbish about his innocence. The Judge was deeply affected. The spectators burst out into rapturous cheers. The newspapers which cling to the skirts of the Ring will come out this morning and say: "You see! Hall is anxious for a trial—especially at a time when the prosecution is not ready, and his bitterest enemy is set on the Bench. What further proof of his innocence do you require?" The poor tax-payers may rejoin: "All very fine; but we could not have been robbed of these millions if HALL had not connived with the thieves. He signed the warrants. He defended them. If our confidential clerk forges all that we give him to do in consequence, is the clerk guilty of no offence?" But what is the good of remonstrance? HALL "is confident of his innocence." The machinery of justice is largely controlled by him. The disposed members of the Ring depend upon him for their restoration to power. Public feeling against them has a little subsided. With a bold dash, all may yet be retrieved. "Our time will come again," said one of the Tammany cachems the other day, "and then—look out!" Look out indeed! When that day comes, New-York will be a remarkably good place to emigrate from. The yoke which we have partially thrown off will be riveted ten times more firmly upon our necks. The City, just beginning to recover from unheard of oppressions and robberies, will sink deeper than ever. This is the prospect before us. What will the people do to avert this tremendous disaster and disgrace?

The Guardians of the Public Purse.

There are two things upon which the corrupt political cliques of the City and their friends at Albany are agreed. These are, to defeat the passage of a reform charter, and to get Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN out of the Controller's office. In other words, they are resolved to bend their united strength to the task of cheating the people out of the fruits of a great victory. We expect that to-night's meeting will show that the overwhelming mass of the community of New-York, outside of the ranks of professional politicians, are as much in earnest as they were in November last on the subject of a reorganization of the City Government.

In their conspiracy against Controller GREEN, the rank of the Tammany Democracy and their Republican allies are equally certain to be defeated. Mr. GREEN's discharge of his present duties needs no defense from us. We have given him, and shall continue to give him, an entirely independent support, on the simple ground that he is the ablest and most faithful public servant whom New-York has had for many years, and that he has fought the people's battle against official corruption at the most critical and vital point of the entire situation. The disgraceful demonstration of Saturday last is merely part of a concerted effort which will be made at future meetings of the Board of Audit, and in the Press, to intimidate and browbeat the Controller into sanctioning claims for supplies which were never furnished, and for services which were never rendered. Journals which have been conspicuous for opposing every step of the movement in favor of reform, begin the attempt to cast odium upon Mr. GREEN, on the ground that he is keeping needy clerks and laborers out of their pay. That there has been delay in paying certain just claims, is unquestionably true; but it is equally true that Mr. GREEN is not to blame for this. It should also be understood that at the present moment there are comparatively few honest claims for services rendered which remain unpaid, and that the people who are trying to bully the Controller are those who have no right to be paid at all. The fact that from Sept. 16, 1871, to Feb. 19, 1872, there have been paid on account of wages $5,002,217 29, will serve to illustrate this. For the last three and a half months of 1871, the Controller had to struggle along in the face of active opposition from the heads of other Departments, with a treasury on the verge of bankruptcy, and with the business of the City in a general state of chaos. He found pay-rolls weeks, and even months in arrears, appropriations for permanent works and for current expenses either exhausted, or with balances entirely insufficient to meet the demands of the year. The managers of banks and trust companies looked shy at temporary loans to a Government which had HALL in the Mayor's chair, TWEED in the Department of Works, and SWEENY in that of Parks.

On Mr. GREEN solely devolved the task of sustaining the credit of the City during that critical time, of preventing thousands of men from being thrown out of employment, and of arresting the utter disorganization which threatened the Municipal fabric. Promptly at the opening of the Legislature, Mr. GREEN presented his petition for relief from the financial pressure which bore upon all Departments of the City Government. He pointed out, very clearly, the distress which would be brought upon thousands of families if power was not immediately given him to meet all legal claims against the City. The Legislature wrangled for about five weeks over the consideration of an urgent and proper request, and finally passed a bill whose provisions were so confused and contradictory that it had to be rendered capable of execution by supplementary legislation. The supplementary bill was signed only ten days ago—nearly seven weeks after the presentation of the pressing demand of Mr. GREEN to the Legislature. During all this interval, the wheels of the Treasury were clogged, and the hands of the Controller were simply tied.

On Saturday, the 9th inst., the Board of Audit as a working body was practically organized. The bill under which they were constituted prescribes a critical examination of every item of every account presented for payment. At least this is the way in which Controller GREEN and all honest men interpret the command "to audit." Take the portion of City claims represented by the pay-rolls in arrears, and see how this works. It must be remembered that a large proportion of the pay-rolls for last year remaining unpaid, are of a highly doubtful character, representing the inheritance of TWEED and SWEENY's administration, and the necessities of Tammany at last election. In any case they must be audited, and to audit a pay-roll is, of course, to find out whether every man upon it did the work for which he claims payment. Messrs. GARRY STREETER and VAN NORT, sitting in public as a Board of Audit, cannot obviously do this, and the result is, that the entire mass of claims, legal and fraudulent, are "received as they stand, none have long now, of the Comptroller. The Finance Department, in addition to its current business, has suddenly thrown upon it a vast accumulation of arrears. Pay-rolls containing from two to two thousand names, and bills for supplies still more varied and intricate, have to be carefully audited and tested.

As a sample of the sort of work demanded from the Controller and his subordinates, take the following: A pay-roll for October comes from the Department of Public Works containing the names of ninety-two men who are called Water Police, and whose salary for the month amounts to over $2,000. A little examination shows that the old Croton Board employed only from twenty to twenty-five men for the same work. Each man on the roll is summoned personally, and requested to make an affidavit that he performed the duties with which he is credited. Inquiry reveals the fact that the actual work has been done by a few men, and that the duties of at least three-fourths of the men on the roll were confined to reporting themselves at TWEED's office in the morning, and loafing during the rest of the day. The Controller cannot recommend the payment of a pay-roll like this without betraying the public trust and breaking the law. Here is another sample: A pay-roll, also for October, appears with TWEED's signature affixed, on which appear the names of ninety painters, who are identified as having been employed in the painting of City lamps and lamp-posts. The men being individually summoned to make affidavit that their work, testify that from ten to twenty-five lamps and lamp-posts were painted by each man per diem. Taking the low average of fifteen for each man, it would be found that this corps of painters ought to have painted during the twenty-six working days of October 35,100 lamps and posts. As there are but 20,000 of these within the entire City limits, it becomes at once apparent that the claim of the painters is not of that valid kind which the law requires.

We understand that it was chiefly men who figure upon these two obviously fraudulent pay-rolls who made the disturbance in the Controller's office on Saturday last. Examples like these ought to show the public how arduous is the struggle which Mr. GREEN has still to wage against what is left of Tammany corruption. The stump speeches by Mr. VAN NORT, which marked the early sessions of the Board of Audit, have doubtless helped to encourage the insolence of the rowdy retainers of Tammany; and the immunity from punishment of the greater rascals has confirmed the rank and file in the hope that their power is not yet gone. We trust that every tax-payer has a clear perception of how much depends on keeping Mr. GREEN in the Controller's office. The public Treasury is being honestly guarded for the first time in many years, and the only people who feel this state of things oppressive are those who have been accustomed to live on the plunder of their fellow-citizens. Will the public see Mr. GREEN driven out of his present office by ruffians and thieves?

The Meeting This Evening.

The Committee of Seventy call upon our citizens, without regard to party, to meet them once more at the Cooper Institute this evening, to sustain an organic law, framed as a City charter should be, with a sole regard to the public welfare. That an instrument of that character should meet with the hostility of all the trading local politicians, who see the chances of profitably continuing their nefarious business seriously interfered with, should occasion no surprise; but it does surprise us that honest and well-meaning reformers can at the present moment doubt their clear duty in the premises. The general principles upon which the act which has been ordered to a third reading are framed, cannot successfully be attacked nor belittled. If any charter is to be passed by our Legislature which will give our citizens the right of self-government, let it be given to all, and not to a part of our citizens. Each and every act which has thus far been performed by the opponents of the Seventy, as a substitute for their measure of relief, denies the people that right. One-half of the session of the Legislature is now past. Can it be pretended that any other charter for the City can be prepared during this recess, or thereafter, which will be as well considered as the one upon which our foremost lawyers and political thinkers have labored for months, and which has passed the ordeal of legislative action in Committee of the Whole of the Assembly, without material amendments during four days of last week? There should be no uncertain note this evening. The Committee which has so earnestly, so disinterestedly worked for the common weal, deserve and should receive at our hands unqualified support. The time for cavil on small points is at an end. Men must be on the side of honesty and reform, or on the side of dishonesty and fraud. The war against knavery is still waging, and half-and-half reformers are more dangerous than open enemies. The meeting this evening will close up ranks, and give men an opportunity to declare themselves for or against decent and honest City government.

The Charter.

Mr. GREELEY declares that he is in favor of the charter of the Committee of Seventy, reserving the right to "propose or to favor amendments whenever he shall deem such amendments necessary or advisable," and he calls upon the friends of the charter to defer to the suggestions of SAMUEL J. TILDEN and THOMAS G. ALVORD, "when they seem reasonable." We wish Mr. GREELEY and Mr. TILDEN would tell us what amendments they desire. The only suggestions of amendment we have heard, have come from Mr. ALVORD. That gentleman objects to the feature of the charter which legislates out of office the present Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen and opposes the system of cumulative voting. As to the latter amendment, Mr. GREELEY says that he does not deem such an amendment "reasonable." On the contrary, he decidedly objects to it. The only admissible amendment, therefore, then he suggests, is to leave the Aldermen and Assistants in office. Does Mr. GREELEY really think that the issue of reform or improvidently requires this that the charter is to be delayed or opposed till it is granted? Does he not rather believe that the cause of reform will be promoted by starting with an entire "new deal," wiping out all the present incumbents, and leaving the people to re-elect them if they choose? What amendments do Mr. GREELEY and his friends desire as conditions of his and their ardent support of the charter? Will he not state them publicly? We know that the Committee of Seventy earnestly wish that the charter should pass by the affirmative votes of not less than one hundred members of the Assembly. Mr. GREELEY can do much to secure that number. What changes will induce him to go to work in earnest? As a good citizen, possessing power, and therefore charged with responsibility, he should state specifically what he wants—not what he would prefer if he were the sole arbiter, but what will content him and satisfy him now, so that the charter may be instantly passed.

Greeley and Hank Smith.

Mr. GREELEY denies that he has attempted to shield HANK SMITH, President of the swindling Bowling-green Savings Bank, and President, also, of the Police Commission—the last being a very pretty position for a man to occupy who is accused of committing or conniving at great and cruel frauds. But Mr. GREELEY is proverbially very ready at "denials." The course he has taken on this question cannot be disposed of by his calling people slanderers, or "liars and villains." He has only published the particulars of the Bowling-green fraud in a mutilated form. He is speaking out a little more plainly now, under pressure—and we hope to keep him to that point.

Again, Mr. GREELEY quotes a passage from the TIMES, as follows, with a comment:

"'If Mr. GREELEY had not lent his own name to lure depositors to the Bowling-green Savings Bank, would he be so anxious to cover up HANK SMITH's frauds?'—TIMES.

If Mr. GREELEY had lent his name for any such purpose, that would have been a strong additional reason, for not covering up, but for exposing, any frauds committed in the premises. But he never did anything of the kind. His name was printed as President of the National Bureau of Immigration, which he had consented to be, which consent he has once withdrawn. He never took part in any proceeding by which the savings bank in question was indorsed or otherwise commended."—Tribune.

Now, the fact is, that Mr. GREELEY's name was advertised in his own paper as inviting people desirous of immigrating, to deposit their money in the Bowling-green Savings Bank, at that time in a bankrupt condition. That intending immigrants did not take his advice is lucky for them, but is no credit to Mr. GREELEY. We have put this matter very plainly once or twice, and we read a paragraph yesterday evening in the Brooklyn Eagle which sums up the case very briefly and accurately, and we reprint it here:

"The Tribune and TIMES are busy discussing the question whether HANK SMITH and HORACE GREELEY are alike morally responsible to the depositors of the bankrupt Bowling-green Savings Bank. Both journals hold that President SMITH is responsible, and the Tribune says he 'cannot plead he had no part in that management.' That is a sound principle. He who pretends to manage a bank should be liable for neglect of management. The Tribune admits that GREELEY's 'name was printed as President of the National Bureau of Immigration, which he had consented to be.' That Bureau recommended its constituents to deposit in the Bowling-green Bank. On the Tribune's own theory, then, GREELEY is responsible for the consequences of that recommendation."

Mr. GREELEY's name may be seen in his own paper, advertised with HANK SMITH's, in connection with the Bowling-green Savings Bank. Mr. GREELEY can no more deny that than he can deny that he was a fellow director of the Tobacco Manufacturing Company (raw material, Chappaqua cabbage) with "Boss" TWEED and "Nat" SANDS.

There is another thing which Mr. GREELEY cannot deny: It is that the Tribune is cheating the tax-payers by publishing columns of corporation advertisements which are not ordered to be printed on any proper authority. This is a distinct fraud upon the City.

Our Demoralized Police Force.

Since the administration of Mayor WOOD, it is safe to say that the Police force of New-York City has never stood in more urgent need of reorganization than it does at the present day. While Mr. THOMAS ACTON was Chairman of the Commission, there was a strong effort made to secure respectable men to fill the offices of Captains and Sergeants, and there seemed then a reasonable probability that in time we should have a force that for discipline would not be second to any in the world. Immediately following the resignation of Mr. ACTON came a Democratic majority in the Legislature, and a reconstruction of the Police Commission. One of the first acts of the new Commissioners was the appointment of the late Capt. JOHN JOURDAN to succeed Mr. JOHN A. KENNEDY as Superintendent. JOURDAN was known to be thoroughly competent to discharge the duties of such a position, and his promotion was, therefore, satisfactory to both political parties. Having risen from the ranks, he knew all the weak points of the system, and began at once to enforce a degree of discipline which caused a good deal of consternation among the Captains and Sergeants. Those who read the reports in the newspapers at the time will remember how many of these officers he caught napping on the first night of his round of visits to the Station-houses. Several dismissals were the result of this unexampled industry. Then came the raid upon the gift-jewelry swindlers, and the total annihilation of a business that had been continued for years without a single conviction. This work was achieved by placing a policeman on duty at the door of every gift-jeweler, to warn unsuspecting persons of the nature of the swindle that was prepared for them. Unfortunately for the public service, the Hahnan murder occurred about this time, and the outcry against the Police was so great that poor JOURDAN felt it imperative upon him rather to bring the assassin to justice or resign. Day after day, and night after night, he pored over each message of evidence as he could gather, but the strain proved too much for his strength, and he sank and died under it.

To fill the vacancy occasioned by his death, JAMES KELSO, the brother-in-law of TWEED's pliant tool, CORNELIUS CORSON, was selected, and he, KELSO, has been endeavoring with much success to not only undo all his predecessor's work, but to restore the force to what it was in the old evil days. He has even outdone CORSON in his slavish to the wishes of "Ancillary" BAKE and the Tammany knaves. With his sanction, such men as LOOMEY have been sent to certain precincts for the purpose of intimidating voters, while the gamblers and thieves have been allowed to enjoy complete immunity from arrest. Captains and Sergeants are no longer in fear of a nocturnal visit from the Chief, and the roundsman, being infected by the indifference of their superior officers, don't care to have it supposed that they embody all the severity in themselves. Can it be wondered at, therefore, that the policemen take it easy, too, and that at night a person may walk fifteen blocks without encountering a policeman? The outrages that have lately been perpetrated on Broadway, almost within view of a much-frequented hotel, fully attest the truth of these charges. Now, in order to cover up his shortcomings, and appear in the eyes of the public as a most exemplary official, Mr. KELSO sometimes treats us to a little by-play in the shape of a raid upon a Broadway concert-saloon, or a "keno" den in an obscure neighborhood. But the truth is, we are sick alike of his farces and of himself, and shall most heartily welcome any plan that is calculated to give us a better Police system and a better set of superior officers. We cannot expect Policemen to catch thieves when such men as HANK SMITH order all their movements.

The Author of "Rabagas."

M. VICTORIEN SARDOU, whose fame as the author of "Rabagas" bids fair to outshine all that he has gained before, is bitterly attacked by the Republican journals of Paris for political inconsistency. They say that on the morning the news of Sedan reached Paris, SARDOU went capering about like a mad man. At Marly he woke up an intimate friend with cries of joy. "What's the matter?" said the friend. "The army is captured at Sedan," shouted the author, rapturously. "The Emperor is a prisoner. Now we shall have it." "Have what?" "Why, the Republic, of course. To Paris! To Paris! Our friends wait for us." The République Française, in giving this anecdote, cynically remarks that for twenty years the friend had lived next door to SARDOU and never before knew he was so ardent a Republican.

Pushing on to Paris in hot haste, M. SARDOU yet arrived too late to take part in the occupation of the Corps Législatif. But he did something much more dramatic. He put himself at the head of a howling crowd, and marched to the Tuileries. The rabble cheered the author of the Famille Benoiton, who yelled back at them apostrophes like the following: "At last we have it, this great Republic! What a great day! What a great people! Now for such amusements as a Revolution alone can give to the faithful!" After this SARDOU rushed back to Marly, seized the flag which ornamented the Town Hall, and—with the same hands that wrote "Rabagas," says one of his indignant accusers—tore off the eagle of the Empire from the flagstaff.

Presently came the capitulation of Paris, the insurrection, and the overthrow of the Commune; and with these events M. SARDOU's political gospel changed. The Republic now became to him merely a piece that had failed. Something must be provided quickly to fill the gap; so he sat down and wrote "Rabagas." We have only the outlines of this production, but we know that it has made a great noise. First it was prohibited, and then excised, but first and last it has created an immense commotion, which, by latest advices, was on the increase. "Rabagas" is savagely anti-Republican, ridicules GAMBETTA mercilessly, and foreshadows the return of NAPOLEON III. Time will show whether the flexible dramatists' rising sun is veritable or only a mirage. It is perhaps only natural that he should take a theatrical view of all situations, and prize no drama, political or other, that does not seem certain to have a "run." If the Ex-Emperor does come back to Paris, M. SARDOU will, doubtless, get what a ward politician would call a "front seat" for his pains.

MINOR TOPICS.

Every family in New-York has a vital interest in seeing the City well-governed. The Charter of the Committee of Seventy aims at giving the people, once more, the management of their own affairs. We trust, therefore, that the people will show, by attending the meeting to-night in the hall of the Cooper Union, that they are not indifferent to the great issues which that charter involves. The Legislature is waiting to see what the citizens of New-York have to say on the question of local government, and if Reform is to succeed at Albany at all, it must be by the aid of the emphatic reindorsement of all classes of the community. Give the politicians a chance of urging that the people have grown apathetic or indifferent, and they will have legislation all their own way. This way leads to official plunder and municipal bankruptcy. Don't risk anything by staying away from to-night's meeting. The problem of living is hard enough without being made harder by the ruinous taxation and the renewed growth of the City debt, which will follow the defeat of the great Reform movement.

Certain statements affecting the judicial record of Judge MCCUNN came to us through one of the usual news channels, and were inserted in the TIMES of yesterday. In another column will be found an explicit denial of these charges by Judge MCCUNN. Our readers will agree with us in thinking that the word referred to is entitled to greater consideration than could be accorded to general statements, given simply as the voice of uncertain rumor.

The Committee on Commerce and Navigation, appointed to inquire into the Quarantine frauds and kindred matters, have appointed HENRY W. JOHNSON as counsel—and more number one, for Mr. JOHNSON was formerly counsel to the Quarantine Board, counsel for SWINBURNE, CARROCHAN, and all other persons connected with Quarantine business for the past seven years. Then the Committee, it is reported, are to go on an excursion in CARROCHAN's tug, Andrew Fletcher, on Wednesday—but more number two. Perhaps, however, there may be some good explanation of these strange proceedings, and if so we shall be glad to hear it.

It is difficult to conceive of a more purely wanton and devilish piece of villainy than was lately attempted in an English theatre. During the representation of a pantomime, nearly twenty of the performers, young women and children, had to be hoisted to a considerable height above the stage. They were distributed into five groups, and as one of these was being raised, the rope used for the purpose broke. It was then discovered that four out of the five strands in it had been cut, and upon examination at the close of the scene, the other four ropes were found to have been similarly treated. Fortunately, they had been cut too little, as the first too much, and so by the merest chance this heartless piece of wickedness was frustrated. Had it succeeded, hardly any of its intended victims could have escaped either instant death, or very painful injury, since the fall was forty feet.

It seems to be a belief of Democratic leaders that liberty in abuse is a constitutional if not a natural right. Yesterday the minority of the Ewing Committee coolly asked the House to accept and print, for their use in the Presidential campaign, a report which contained the most scurrilous language with reference to the majority of the Committee and to Congress as a body. They did not, however, succeed, and were plainly told that they must reduce their report to a respectful form before it could be received at all. The reception and printing of a minority report being purely a matter of favor, the reasonableness of this condition is apparent. Meanwhile, we ask the Democratic papers to note and remember the fact that FRANK BLAIR, in the Senate, admitted that the majority of the Committee had acted in good faith and with fairness. It will save some useless slander.

Don't fail to attend the meeting at the Cooper Union to-night. Go, if it be only to see that the hall is packed to overflowing, and that the enthusiasm within is echoed by plaudits out-of-doors. There must be no excuse for supposing that the great victory of November was the result of a spasmodic outburst of popular feeling, which may not occur for years again. There is a conspiracy afoot to cheat the people out of the fruits of that victory, and this conspiracy will gain new energy if the people leave the Reform charter to take care of itself. Let it be shown that the Committee of Seventy can command as powerful an indorsement as they ever did, and schemes for partisan profit will be crushed both in the City and in the Legislature. Men elected in November have fallen away from the pledges of reform. It must be unmistakably shown that the determination of the great mass of this community is as firmly fixed as it ever was to wrest the control of City affairs from the hands of the trading politicians of both parties.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Sanguine Predictions of Republican Success in March.

From the Manchester (N. H.) Mirror Feb. 17.

"What is the prospect?" This is asked a thousand times a day, a score of times of us some days. We have looked over the ground; corresponded with many parties in different towns; traveled considerably over the State, and met men of all parties and interests; have spent a few hours in looking over the canvass returned to the State Committee, and received many letters from all sections of the State, and we are prepared to say that victory awaits us.

We feel great confidence that we shall elect Mr. STRAW by the people, by a handsome majority. There is no doubt but that we shall carry three Council Districts First, Third and Fourth, giving us a majority of the Executive Council, while in the Second District we shall follow close up to our Democratic opponent. We are confident of seven of the twelve Senators, and are likely to elect in nine districts in all but the Sixth, Eighth and Twelfth, or in the second or third district, in any one of the three most doubtful, we shall be able to prevent our opponents from choosing.

Now for the House, where the great contest is coming, for which the Democracy are mustering all their capital and nearly all their labor. There were last year 243 members elected, which proved sufficient to bring the whole number of members up to about 313, which we believe is the largest number ever sent to the House. This year if the Democracy carry out their plans and elect an extra member in every town where there is a considerable surplus of polls, as they are planning to do, we must calculate on 400 members elect. We judge only by our observation and the information given by reliable men, by letter and in conversation. We find there are but few towns where losses are liable, about ten in the whole State, while the canvass assures us that we shall gain twice that number, to say the least. There have been disaffections in several towns, which are now forgotten in the great necessity of carrying the State. There are other towns where local dissensions alone will prevent us from gaining a victory. Without going into particulars, we have good reason to believe that our majority in the Houses will exceed twenty-five.

This is, all these, are within our grasp if we will but surrender ourselves personally and give our energies to the work. But it will be achieved only by personal sacrifices, individual effort and persistent watchfulness. With the effort we have often put into the work, we shall triumph in the contest, and elect Governor, Council, Senate and House.

OBITUARY.

Gen. Salem Towne.

Hon. SALEM TOWNE, aged ninety-two, died in Charlton, Mass., on Saturday last, in the house in which he was born. He served several terms in the State Legislature; was Colonel in the American Army in the war of 1812, and was afterward made General of the State Militia. He was widely known as the author of Towne's Speller.

The Story of a Trunk—New Stolen Property to be Recovered on the Erie.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DETROIT, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1872.

In the month of November last a trunk belonging to Miss MARTHA DAVIS, containing valuable clothing and quite a sum of money, was stolen from the Erie Depot at this place, as the owner was about starting for Springfield, Ill. No trace of the trunk or the thief was obtained until a few weeks since, when a colored man named CHARLES WILLIAMS was seen by Station Agent BELLEAP to make several visits to the company's wood-pile, near the depot, and carry off a quantity of wood each time. This led to a watch being set upon him, and it was observed that WILLIAMS and his wife were wearing clothes of a quality and in a quantity not in keeping with their station. A search warrant was procured, and a visit made to their house. WILLIAMS was arrested and a search made of the house, resulting in the finding of about $100 worth of wearing apparel, which answered the description of some of the contents of Miss DAVIS' trunk. A large amount of other property was also found, which was no doubt stolen. WILLIAMS was taken in charge by Officer BARKER. As he was proceeding up Main-street with his prisoner, he was handcuffed, the latter broke from the officer's grasp, and, shackled as he was, made for the woods. A large number started in pursuit, but he eluded all pursuers, and has not since been heard of.

OPPONENTS OF THE CHARTER.

We wish that all good citizens could have been at Albany last week, and seen the motley character of the crowd from this City who were opposing the charter of the Committee of Seventy. The most conspicuous and loudest-mouthed were the Tammany Republicans, those who are holding office under the present charter, or are deriving benefits from it, and who see that the passage of the new charter deals them once more to hunger labor or starvation. These sturdy patriots were very indignant with the charter, because it was not framed sufficiently in the interest of the Republican Party to suit them, though they failed to say under what charter the Republicans—being in a large minority in the City—can get so much of patronage and power as under the system of cumulative voting which the proposed charter abolishes. The truth is that when these modest patriots talk of the interests of the Republican Party they mean the interests of those who sweat votes. Of course GEO. H. VAN CENEY, the City Surveyor, to whom TWEED gave so many profitable jobs, and "JIM" MCLAREN, who boldly denied that he held a position as Inspector of Oils till we proved it on him by the official pay-rolls; and HENRY A. BARNUM, Deputy Tax Commissioner; and JAMES L. HASTIE, printer to the Board of Health, and man of all work to MANIERRE and GRIMALDY; and "Mikey" FARRELL, attorney to the Department of Buildings; and MARK LANAGAN, and E. L. BULLOCK, and "Bill" HEPBURN, and "Bill" ASHMAN, and "Jo." FORRES, and the score of others who now feed at the public crib, were loud in chorus, in season and out of season, before drinks and during drinks and after drinks, at the outrage upon their vested rights involved in the passage of the charter. Commissioner of Public Works VAN NORT dispensed his hospitality and his appointments—some of them, it is said, in blank—in a manner to convince the doubting of the absolute necessity of having a "Republican charter," though he had assured the Committee of Seventy that if they would so amend their charter as to leave him in office, the change would make it a strictly genuine Republican instrument. Along with him came THOMAS E. STEWART and CHARLES P. SHAW, the former so fresh from his membership of the Democratic State Committee that his anxiety for the interests of the Republican Party was especially affecting, an anxiety by the way which received its highest illustration when it was proposed to the Committee of Seventy to strike from their charter everything relating to docks, and to adopt STEWART's grand commercial commission as a means of securing the support of STEWART, TWOMBLY, SHAW, and Company.

Alongside of the patriots we have named, were HENRY L. CLINTON, FRANK SPINOLA and others, who were greatly alarmed lest the system of cumulative voting should turn out the honest men in the present Board of Aldermen, and fill the places of COMAN and PLUNKITT, JOYCE and MEHRBACH with thieves. Acting in concert with all these was the owlish wisdom of BEN. FIELD, trying to make it out that in some unknown way the Committee of Seventy had become a body of Conkling conspirators, determined to seal the fate of FENTON and GREELEY, by means of their terrible charter. FIELD sought thus to lug into the contest an element which has nothing to do with it, for the real and only question is, Does the proposed charter establish a form of government which promises to work fairly and equitably, to give to all classes a voice in our Municipal Government, and to protect us from the evils under which we have suffered? This is all that we have a right to ask. The Legislature being strongly Republican may, however, fairly consider whether, in carrying out their measures of reform, justice is done to the Republican minority in this City, which constituted the larger portion of the reform element last Fall; but they have no right to sacrifice the principles of good government and reform to a desire to promote mere party success. That the proposed charter by its system of cumulative voting secures to the Republican Party more of power than a minority can hope to obtain under any other system, we have already intimated. Even if it did not do this it seems to us clear that the true interest of the Republican Party is to be found in adhering to the reform element which gave us so many votes last Fall for our State ticket and in which lies our chief hope of gaining any strength from the Democratic Party. In the apparent fact that the so-called Conkling faction see this more clearly than the Fenton men is found the only pretence for the charge that the charter has anything to do with the divisions in the Republican Party. It will in no sense concern them unless one section chooses to oppose it.

The Charter received on Friday 27 votes. It needs 60 to pass it, and we feel confident it will obtain that number and more. The 27 votes were the following, the five Democrats being in italics. We believe but a single one of the fifty-two Republicans—Mr. STRAHAN, of Orange—is claimed as likely to be found voting against the charter on its final passage. Certainly, any Republican who changes his vote will subject himself to grave suspicions:

Allerger, of Erie; Badeau of Westchester; Botts, of Erie; Beckwith, of Oneida; Berri, of Kings; E. F. Brown, of Cayuga; I. D. Brown, of Cayuga; Burritt, of Monroe; Crandall, of Allegany; Davidson, of Wyoming; Eastman, of Dutchess; Enos, of Jefferson; Flammer, of New-York; Fort, of Oswego; Gelb, of New-York; Gess, of Monroe; Green, of Oswego; Gregory, of Schuyler; Haight, of New-York; Hawkins, of New-York; Hill, of Chemung; Hyatt, of Madison; Jacobs, of Kings; Judd, of Richmond; Kennedy, of Livingston; Kingsland, of Clinton; Knapp, of Genesee; Lincoln, of Ontario; Lappin, of Madison; Lord, of Yates; Lott, of Sennia; Lynde, of St. Lawrence; Mackay, of New-York; Morton, of Kings; Moulton, of New-York; Murdock, of Steuben; Niles, of Westchester; Oakley, of Queens; Osgood, of Rensselaer; Paige, of New-York; Pell, of New-York; Pierce, of Franklin; Preston, of Chautauqua; Prince, of Queens; Rice, of Herkimer; Rose, of St. Lawrence; Shepardson, of Chenango; Sisson, of Erie; Smiley, of Lewis; Smyth, of Tioga; Smith, of Albany; Springsted, of Albany; Squires, of Cortland; Strahan, of Orange; Swain, of Niagara; Van Duzer, of Ontario; Woodward, of Warren.

The following fifty-three members voted against ordering the charter to a third reading. Of these, four or five avowed before they left the Assembly, on Friday, that they should vote for the bill on its final passage. We shall be greatly astonished if Mr. TILDEN's name is not found recorded on their side, and if a week's association with these constituents does not change still others:

Abbott, of Orange; Aitken, of Kings; Alvord, of Onondaga; Benna, of Chautauqua; Bennett, of Kings; Bixby, of New-York; Buckley, of Sullivan; Bull, of Fulton; Burns, of Onondaga; Campbell, of New-York; Carrick, of Oneida; Chamberlain, of Orange; Chambers, of Erie; Cook, of New-York; Cornelison, of Schoharie; Dunphy, of New-York; Fields, of New-York; Foley, of New-York; Fowler, of Steuben; Frost, of New-York; Goring, of Dutchess; Hunt, of Orleans; Houghton, of New-York; Hyram, of Oneida; Hagan, of New-York; Healy, of New-York; Herrick, of Rensselaer; Hill, of Queens; HAZELTON, of Erie; Hilliker, of Washington; Honeyman, of Saratoga; Hungerford, of Oneida; Hurlbut, of Westchester; Lord, of Monroe; Loughran, of Erie; Mitchell, of St. Lawrence; Mosher, of Kings; Rodgers, of Albany; Rog, of Columbia; Rowe, of Kings; Sage, of Oneida; Smith, of Washington; Stalker, of Onondaga; Sandel, of Rensselaer; Tilden, of New-York; Tucker, of Otsego; Twombly, of New-York; Van Dusen, of Montgomery; Vedder, of Greene; Wait, of Saratoga; Witteck, of New-York; Whitson, of Ulster; Weekes, of Illinois; Weiss, of Erie.

There were absent the following Republicans:

D. L. Babcock, of Albany; J. H. Babcock, of Niagara; Dykman, of Putnam; Greenhalgh, of Schenectady; Griffin, of Delaware; Kanaley, of Tompkins; Lewis, of Delaware; Marsy, of Suffolk; Park, of Kings; Tabey, of Essex; Tuthill, of Rockland; Wells, of Wayne; White, of Kings; Wyman, of Jefferson; and Youmans, of Wayne.

Not less than six of these had given assurances that they would vote in favor of the charter, while others—like TOMKINS, of Rockland—were so immediately the products of the Reform movement that they can hardly be otherwise. One or two of the absentees—like KNETTLES, of Tompkins—are reported to have dodged the vote. While we believe the charter will pass the Assembly triumphantly, we trust no effort will be omitted to secure that result; for the opponents are industrious, and will use all kinds of efforts and arguments to defeat it.

Comptroller Green and City Pay-Rolls.

In certain disputable quarters, an attempt is being made to cast odium upon Comptroller GREEN, on the ground that he has unduly delayed payment of the claims of various classes of City employes. The fact is, that but for the personal credit of Mr. GREEN, the laboring men would have had very much longer to wait for the payment of the money of which the Ring robbed them. Since the 1st of January, the Comptroller has been unable to meet claims for salaries, without the authority of the Legislature. This has been but recently obtained, yet there are, at this moment, comparatively few claims for services actually rendered to the City which remain unpaid. On application at the Department of Finance, we find that between Sept. 16, 1871, and Feb. 19, 1872, Comptroller GREEN has paid the following sums for wages:

For wages of laborers and employes Department of Public Works	$634,790 87
For wages of laborers and employes Fire Department	204,567 14
For wages of laborers and employes Department of Public Parks	1,536,955 07
For pay of teachers and employes Department of Public Instruction	989,036 46
For pay of Police force, Department of Police	1,063,918 17
For pay of employes Department of Public Charities and Correction	34,404 85
For pay of employes Health Department	18,961 09
For pay of employes Mayor's Office	3,099 99
For pay of employes Legislation Department	15,499 98
For pay of employes Department of Finance	31,799 46
For pay of employes Department of Buildings	10,774 26

THE BROOKLYN FIFTY.

Report of the Excise Investigating Committee—Proposed Indictment of the Commissioners.

At a secret meeting of the Brooklyn Reform Committee of Fifty, held on Saturday evening last, the Subcommittee appointed to examine into the affairs of the Excise Board made their report, of which the following is a summary:

The examination "shows a discrepancy, on general average, of cash credits carried forward from the record book of only 97, which occurred under rebates on original metropolitan licenses unexpired." During the first business year of the Board, from May 11, 1870, to April 10, 1871, there were issued 3,651 licenses. The index shows 3,677 names. This discrepancy is explained by the fact that twenty-six names of licenses were registered twice. From April 10, 1871, to Jan. 1, 1872, there were issued 2,618 licenses, while the index records 2,671 names. Of these fifty-three were licenses transferred, leaving the index book five named short of the number upon the record book, Cause—neglect in indexing.

After giving a summary of the year's business the Committee say:

In conclusion, the matters most deserving the attention of your Committee in connection with the Board of Excise are:

1. The apparent illegal withdrawal of money from the funds of the Board, by ROBERT THOMPSON, one of the Commissioners, the laws bearing on which have been heretofore looked.

2. The apparent illegal counsel fees paid to JOHN C. JACOBS.

3. The large balances withheld from the City Treasury, of which it is intended by the law that full monthly returns should be rendered, and which balances we state as follows:

1870—May	$45,222 97
June, after payment of $24,000 to City Treasury	28,117 22
July	42,771 22
August	42,007 22
September	44,187 22
October	44,625 22
November	41,121 22
December	48,512 22
1871—January	47,512 77
February	47,512 77
March	51,675 77
April	52,419 77
May, after payment of $20,000 into City Treasury	34,241 97
June	31,825 15
July	37,241 97
August	105,076 97
September	110,186 97
October, after payment of $64,000 into City Treasury	84,800 00
November	81,581 00
December	83,900 00

And on Jan. 5, 1872, they paid to the City Treasury the sum of $78,000, retaining a balance of $81,581 97, which is still withheld. The balances average the sum of $63,181 78 withheld, for a period of twenty months, by the Commissioners of Excise, the interest on which, at seven per cent, per annum, would amount to $6,782 72.

4. The issuing of trans ferring licenses, for which we can find no authority in the statute, and by which the city is defrauded to the extent of the amount which would be paid for new licenses were this system abolished.

5. The assumption of the right by the Commissioners of Excise to make such changes and alterations in their printed rates of license fees, as in their judgment they may deem expedient and necessary, in particular cases, which has been noticed at length, on a previous page of this report.

Signed,

THOMAS N. ROOKER, Chairman.

WM. A. COIT, Secretary.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 14, 1872.

After the reading of the report, a resolution was unanimously adopted, providing that the facts relating to the Excise Board be laid before to the District-Attorney for the purpose of prosecuting the Commissioners for defalcation in office.

Hamstringing the "Whitewash."

Yesterday, Wm. A. FOWLER, President of the Water Board, received a communication from Mr. JULIAN ALLEN, of the Committee of Fifty, stating that a new subcommittee had been appointed to investigate the affairs of the Water And Sewerage Department, and asking him to allow a clerk, appointed by the Council of Vigilance, to make a full list of the employes in the Water Department. The Subcommittee consisted of Messrs. Julian Allen, H. R. Chittenden, Morris Reynolds, J. C. Smith, A. F. Goodsell, N. Cothren, J. S. Roberts, J. M. Cornwyer, W. Hepburn, and Gideon Frost.

Mr. FOWLER, it is said, has positively refused to submit to another investigation, for the simple reason that the Council of Vigilance refused to give to the public the report made by the first subcommittee appointed to investigate the affairs of the Department.

The Metropolitan Gas Company.

The recent onslaught of the TIMES upon the gas companies of this City, has been attended with gratifying results. Citizens who gas is supplied by the Metropolitan Company state that they find a marked improvement in the quality of their gas, and have within the last few days received communications from the Company informing them that their charges will be hereafter reduced to thirty-five or thirty-seven cents on every hundred feet.

AMUSEMENTS.

BROOKS'S THEATRE—JULIUS CÆSAR.

A highly praiseworthy interest took place last night at Brooks's Theatre, in the cast of "Julius Cæsar." Mr. LAWRENCE BARRETT having returned, Mr. JUNIUS BRUTUS BOOTH, elder brother of Mr. EDWIN BOOTH, came on from Boston and resumed the character of Cassius. Mr. J. B. BOOTH made his introduction to the New-York public either as actor or manager. His merits in either capacity are well known, and his greeting last night at the hands of the audience was that which is accorded to an old friend. His performance of Cassius is signified, chaste, and full of carefully digested meaning. The fruits of long experience and hard study are availed of by him to lend grace with much force and address, and, whatever may be said of his reading of Cassius in the declamatory sense, Mr. BOOTH's bearing and gesture are finer than those of any actor who has appeared on what now appears here in "Julius Cæsar." He is more like a man of classic antiquity, more like a Roman, than any of his companions, not excepting his brother, and this is a matter that deserves to be noted and commended. Mr. BOOTH was often warmly applauded last night, and his reception and performance were altogether such as to warrant congratulation. We are glad to observe in Mr. EDWIN BOOTH's embodiment of Brutus some decided improvements on his first performance of the part. He has ripened in it to good purpose, and although Brutus will probably never rank among his best efforts, it is now certainly too good to be placed among his worst. Mr. RANDS' Mark Antony is also better than before, and but for a hoarseness that apparently threatens to become chronic, would leave little to desire. It is gratifying to see that Mr. BOOTH's creditable efforts to place SHAKESPEARE on the New-York stage as he has never been placed before are so warmly appreciated by the public. The ninth week of "Julius Cæsar" began last night, and the houses are undiminished in number and intelligence. This is the kind of encouragement that assures good work for the future, and it is well for the Metropolis that she has the taste and liberality to recognize and reward, managerial taste and energy such as Mr. Barrett, in this field, have had scarcely any precedents.

FRENCH PLAYS.

We are pleased to hear that M. PAUL JUEGLIER and the artists who assisted him in Thursday week's performance at Robinson Hall, in Sixteenth-street, will take part in a second representation of French plays, at the same place, on Thursday next. The company will repeat COPPÉE's "Fais ce que dois," but two new pieces will be acted instead of those already given. "Roch et Luc," a one act vaudeville, and "Un Service à Blanchard," are the titles of the works in question. The excellence of these entertainments, aside from the fact that their success may lead to the resumption of the regular performances now so much missed, commend them eloquently to the encouragement of enlightened patrons of the drama.

Musical.

GERMAN OPERA.

The first performance of the season of German opera at the Grand Opera-house attracted, last evening, an audience that crowded the house in every part. NICOLAI's "Merry Wives of Windsor," which has already been given at the Stadt Theatre by the artists who took part in its recital yesterday, was interpreted. The rehearsal was most successful. Mme. FABRI was complimented with many superb bouquets; Herr MÜLLER and Carl FORMES elicited a great demonstration of delight in the comic duet in the second act; Miss CLARA PERL was greeted with much warmth; and, in brief, the impression of the earliest representation of the series was decisively favorable. To-night, MARSCHNER's "Templar and Jewess" will be represented, and its rendering, as well as that of each of the operas to follow, is likely to be quite as numerously attended and quite as much enjoyed as that of the work selected for the opening of the season.

LAST NIGHT'S CONCERT.

The Charity Concert given last evening, under the auspices of the ladies of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, for the benefit of the Zenana Schools in India, was very numerously attended. Several of its incidents deserve a complimentary mention. Miss KELLOGG's appearances in public, this season, have been so few and far between that her co-operation in a concert is become a bonne fortune, sufficient to illustrate any entertainment. She was in excellent voice yesterday, and her singing was marked by greater expressiveness than usual, and by the brilliancy and finish to which audiences have long since been accustomed. Miss KELLOGG sang "O Luce di quest' Anima," and CLAY's ballad, "I Wandered Down the Mountain Side," encores following both performances. She also took part in ROSSINI's "Quis est Homo" with Mlle. MORENSI. The reappearance of this lady was another feature, so to speak, of the concert. Mlle. MORENSI will be remembered by most frequenters of the Academy six or seven years ago. Her services have lately been enlisted in Havana, where she sang last Winter with great success. Mlle. MORENSI was very cordially received, and the suppleness and power of her voice, which she used in the trying scena and cavatina "Ah quel giorno," from "Semiramide," with particular skill and effect, elicited evidences of hearty admiration. We should be very glad to learn that Mlle. MORENSI has been engaged for one of the series of opera nights soon to be commenced. Her commanding stage presence, and her resources and experience would not, we are sure, be overlooked. In last night's affair, besides the above-named contributions to the bill, some vocal pieces were interpreted by Mrs. P. D. GUILDER, Mr. W. S. LEGGATT and Mr. REMMERTZ, and Mr. BERTI played two compositions for the piano. Harsh criticism bearing upon an entertainment arranged with charitable intent would be unpardonable, but the result of Mr. REMMERTZ's choice of ROSSINI's "Deh ti ferma" would almost warrant it, if Mr. LEGGATT's liberties with the last bars of GOUNOD's "Salve dimora," and the soprano-like swaying of his body to the music, did not.

MR. HILL'S CONCERT.

Mr. W. J. HILL's concert occurs this evening at Steinway Hall. The programme is a good one. Among its interpreters will be Señor SARASATE, Mr. J. N. PATTISON, and Miss ANTOINETTE STERLING.

COMMERCE AND NAVIGATION.

Meeting Yesterday of the Legislative Committee in Secret Session—Six Feature Plans—One of the Institutions to be Investigated—The Seamen's Retreat.

The Legislative Committee on Commerce and Navigation, which was instructed to inquire during the recess into the conduct of the Health Officer of the Port of New-York, the Quarantine Commission, the Emigrant Commission, and the Seamen's Retreat, met and organized yesterday morning at the St. Nicholas Hotel. There were present Messrs. ALLEMBERG, JUDD, GRIS, CARPENTER, LORD and SENNETT. Messrs. SNYDER and BABCOCK are temporarily absent, and Mr. GREEN is not expected to join the Committee during its investigations. The session yesterday was a secret one, and was devoted to hearing Messrs. MOSES H. GRINNELL, GEORGE B. MATTHEWS, MORRIS TAYLOR, and other leading merchants and ship-owners on the subject of Sailors Quarantine, and was designed to elicit information by which the future course of the Committee might be shaped. It was believed that this information would be given with greater freedom if it were understood that it should not be given to the public.

The Committee will meet again this morning, when the session will probably be open to the public. Three of the Committee will be assigned the investigation of the Commission of Emigration; the remainder will be borne on at Delmonico's Hotel, Quarantine, Staten Island, to take testimony. Any complaints from residents of Staten Island will be listened to.

THE SEAMAN'S RETREAT.

The affairs of the Seamen's Retreat, on Staten Island, will be investigated in the latter part of the week. This institution, which is now in the hands of the Legislature, is one of our oldest incorporations, features of considerable interest to all connected with shipping in Boston. The Retreat was founded exclusively for the treatment of sick and disabled sailors arriving in this port, and it opens to all comers alone suffering from scurvy or infectious diseases. It is supported by a tax upon all vessels entering the port. It is situated near Stapleton, Long Island. The inclosed land of the institution, consisting of about forty acres, was purchased in June, 1847, and on October of the same year the first patients were admitted. The Retreat is governed by a Board of Trustees, a part of whom consist of ex-officio members, and a part are appointed by the Governor of the State. The first meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Seamen's Fund and Retreat was held in the Mayor's office in this City on the 9th of May, 1847. The Board then consisted of the following gentlemen:

Hon. Walter Bowne, Mayor, Chairman; Capt. John Whiting, President of Marine Society; Capt. Alex. Thompson, President of Nautical Society; Major Taylor, Esq., President of Seamen's Savings Bank; Dr. John S. Wesselhœft, Health Officer; Capt. Nathaniel Jones; Hon. Reuben Manly, G. R. Shiddy, and Henry Barnard.

On the 4th of July, 1856, the corner-stone of a new and capacious building was laid, the former accommodations having been found inadequate to the wants of the institution. The new site was offered by Rev. HENRY OTSEN, pastor of Mariner's Church, New-York. The stone was laid by SAMUEL SWINTON, Esq., Collector of the Port, and Chief President of the Board of Trustees, assisted by the trustees, Mr. A. S. MATHER.

The present building is of granite, is 200 feet long by 40 feet wide, and is three and a half stories high, with basement story. It contains all the conveniences which in the language of advertising handicrafts, are known as "modern improvements"—gas, furnaces, hot and cold water, and bath rooms in every story, &c. It has a chapel, capable of seating 150 persons, and a good library. A cemetery is situated on a knoll at the westerly center of the grounds, where many a poor sailor has found a last resting place near the element which had been his home.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen—The Extension of Lafayette-Place—A Mission to Assist the Mississippian—The County Expenses.

The Board of Aldermen met yesterday, President COUNSELMAN in the chair, and all the members present. Mr. RAPHO presented a remonstrance, signed by a large number of property-holders, against the extension of Lafayette-place, from Great Jones-street to Bleecker-street.

Mr. VAN SCHAICK presented a resolution, that the Clerk of the Board inquire into and report the number of Commissioners of Deeds appointed, the fees collected, and the number of those who have failed to qualify up to date, which, after some debate, was adopted.

Mr. RAPHO offered a resolution calling for information in regard to the filthy condition of the streets and sewers. That portion of the resolution relating to streets was referred to the Board of Health; that relating to sewers was referred to the Commissioner of Public Works.

The following preamble and resolution, presented by Mr. JOYCE, was referred to the Committee on Roads:

Whereas, A bill is now pending before the Legislature of the State, which, by its provisions is intended to afford relief to a class of our fellow-citizens, deserving class of our people, entitled "An Act for the relief of contractors in the City of New-York;" and by its passage the Legislature will at once enable the City of New-York to collect, on the several contracts lately suspended, which deprived more members of laborers of employment; * * be it therefore

Resolved, That the Common Council does hereby respectfully request our Senator in the Legislature to pass the bill in question at as early a day as possible, and we also hereby earnestly request the representatives of the City in the Legislature of this State, now in session, to do every thing in their power in their power to effect the passage of said act at the earliest possible period.

Mr. VAN SCHAICK, from the Committee on Streets, presented a report, concluding with a resolution that the resolution adopted by the Common Council, Oct. 11, 1869, for the extension of Lafayette-place (as above designated) be repealed. Mr. VAN SCHAICK said the extension would cost the City $1,000,000, and that it was strongly opposed by property-owners who would be affected by it.

After a long discussion on what disposition should be made of the report and resolution, the whole matter was made the special order for to-morrow at 3 o'clock, at which time the Board subsequently adjourned.

The following resolution, offered by Mr. VAN SCHAICK, was referred to the Committee on the Law Department:

Resolved, That the Counsel to the Corporation be, and he is hereby, directed to institute such proceedings as he may deem proper to recover from the grantee or lessee of all property granted or leased by the City of New-York, without good, legal and adequate consideration, the nominal rentals.

A number of petitions for paving, grading and regulating streets, for Corporation printing, and for renumbering some streets, were received and appropriately referred, as were also several resolutions to appoint certain persons Commissioners of Deeds.

The Assistant Aldermen—The Public Printing and the Expenses of the Board.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen also met yesterday, President HALL in the chair. Several resolutions to appoint Commissioners of Deeds were referred. A petition was referred to pave with Belgium pavement One Hundred and Twelfth-street, from Second to Third-avenue. A resolution was laid over to designate printers to the Corporation instead of the New-York Printing Company.

The resolution cutting down the number of clerks of this Board from twenty-one to nine, was called up and considerable debate ensued, when finally the amendment was moved and lost, that if the expenses of the clerk's office of the Board of Assistant Aldermen shall be reduced to $8,000, to be expended as follows: For clerk's salary, $3,000; deputy-clerk's salary, $2,500; assistant clerk's salary, $1,500; messenger's salary, $1,000. And that the further sum of $2,000 should be paid as follows: For sergeant-at-arms, $1,000; doorkeeper, $500; two messengers, $500.

Mr. GRIS offered a resolution that the Commissioner of Public Works and Parks be directed to report to the Board the number of laborers employed by their Departments.

The resolution to abolish the following officers was lost: First, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth assistant clerks, assistant messengers, messenger to the President, and assistant sergeant-at-arms. The Board then adjourned.

Doings of the Supervisors—A Movement to Cut Down the Expenses of the Board—A Statement from the Clerk.

A meeting of the Board of Supervisors was held yesterday afternoon, all the members present except Recorder HACKETT. The Mayor presided. Several bills against the County were received. Among them was one for $11,000 for a boiler furnished the County Jail. A communication was received from Comptroller GREEN, accompanied by a statement regarding the expenses of the Board of Supervisors, which, on being read, was ordered to be received and printed.

The Clerk of the Board, Mr. J. B. YOUNG, submitted the following statement, called for by Supervisor VAN SCHAICK at the last meeting, in regard to the number, names and salaries of the employes of the Board:

Name.	Position.	Compensation per annum.
James B. Young	Clerk	$6,000

Nathan T. Murphy, cleaning rooms of Supervisors, $3 per day.

Johanna Good, cleaning rooms of Supervisors, $3 per day.

The other cleaners, about forty, although appointed at various times by the Board of Supervisors, perform duties in the different Court-rooms and offices, and at the same rate of compensation.

It was referred to the Committee on Salaries and Offices, and a resolution to pay some of the cleaners was referred.

GEORGE B. ROSS sent in a bill for damages, assuming he fell in Hall, on account of No. 241 Eighth-avenue during the 12th of July riot last year. It was referred to the Committee on Finance.

The Board then adjourned until the first Monday in March.

The Books Succeeded.

The London Times publishes the following telegram from its correspondent at Calcutta, dated Feb. 9:

"Further information has been received which shows who is responsible for the Kooka executions. After the complete suppression of the mutiny, Deputy Commissioner COWAN selected fifty men to be shot. Upon the scene of execution one broke away, ran at Mr. COWAN, and was cut down. The others were blown from guns on Deputy Commissioner COWAN's own responsibility. Mr. FORSYTH, the Commissioner at Umballa, executed twenty men. The whole band, which never numbered 300, has been literally hunted down; sixty-six men and two women, terrified, half-famished and twenty-nine of them wounded, submitted in the end to four men. The whole transaction occurred within forty-eight hours, and in the neighborhood of our fine force of 15,000 men of all arms at Delhi. The Government has ordered an immediate inquiry. The public feeling, which at first was hesitating, is partially turning against the executions."

THE RAPID TRANSIT QUESTION.

The Bill Introduced in the Senate Yesterday—Its Provisions.

The first section of this act provides that William F. Havemeyer, Myer Stern, Benj. F. Beekman, William A. Booth, Jonathan Sturges, Peter Gilsey, John Foley, Randolph V. Townsend and John T. Daley be constituted a Board of Commissioners of City Rest-ways, with power to construct and operate railways for rapid transit in the City of New-York. The railways authorized to be constructed by the act shall extend from the Battery to such point in Fourteenth-street, and thence on Third and Eighth-avenues, and thence to the Harlem River, as the Commissioners shall determine, the number of tracks and width of gauge to be determined upon by the Commissioners.

All alterations necessitated in the sewers, pipes, or gas or water mains, by the construction of the railway, shall be made at the expense of the corporation fund.

The Commissioners are empowered to construct and operate the railway, either as a tunnel through its entire length or as part tunnel, or upon any other plan which may be adopted by them as being the plan best adapted for the public convenience.

The fifth section authorizes them to make all necessary connections, alterations in streets, &c., along the line of route, and gives them the right of way as against all railway companies in the City of New-York in all things necessary for the construction of the railway. The Commissioners may make all proper contracts and enter on all lands for that purpose; and when the route of the road has been finished on, they are to file certified copies of maps of the road in the offices of the Register of Deeds and Commissioner of Public Works of the City. The maps to show the plan, width, elevation and grade of the road, and the land occupied by it, as so designated, shall then be declared a public highway. The Commissioners are to meet in New-York within thirty days after the passage of the act and elect a President and other proper officers. The President shall be paid an annual salary equal to that now paid to the Commissioner of Public Works. The remaining Commissioners shall serve without compensation.

The Commissioners are authorized to act as a Board of Commissioners to receive subscriptions for the building of the road, for the space of sixty days from the passage of the act; and in case there shall not be sufficient funds in their option, to guarantee the construction of this railway, they are constituted a Board of Directors for the space of one year from the passage of the act.

At the expiration of the time for receiving subscriptions, the subscribers shall have the right to construct and operate the railway as authorized by the act, and to furnish the same accommodations at a price which shall not exceed for each adult passenger the sum of ten cents for any distance less than five miles, and two cents per mile for each additional mile or parts thereof. Upon the completion of the railway the subscribers shall be vested with the full and exclusive title and interest therein, and the franchises thereof for the space of fifty years from the date of the passage of the act. In case the sinking fund shall exceed ten per cent per annum of the principal of the construction fund, the Commissioners shall, from time to time, reduce the rate of fare until it reaches the uniform rate of two cents for each passenger over the whole or any part of said railway.

In case the Commissioners shall not secure sufficient funds to construct the road, then the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City are empowered to issue a public stock or fund, to be called "The Rapid Transit Railway Fund," the whole amount not to exceed an amount, the interest upon which, to be paid by the City of New-York, shall not exceed the sum of $250,000 per annum; said stock shall bear interest not exceeding seven per cent.

No Commissioner of the Board shall be directly or indirectly interested in any contract on said road, and in case any Commissioner shall become so interested, he shall immediately thereby forfeit and lose his seat in said Board.

The thirteenth section provides for the establishment of regulations for the running of the road, fixing the fares, accounting, &c., and for the appointment of a General Superintendent by the Commissioners, whose duty it shall be to keep the books of the road, and books to be open to the inspection of all proper persons applying for the same. After the completion of the railway, upon the first Monday of every month, the Commissioners shall file in the office of the Controller of the City a verified statement, setting forth in detail the total receipts and expenses of the road for the month previous. It is also required that the statement shall show all the liabilities incurred, and the surplus remaining on hand, which surplus shall be paid over to the Comptroller to be applied to the payment of interest, as it matures, on construction fund or bonds, and on the redemption of the principal at maturity.

The Commissioners shall, in the month of January in each year, make to the Common Council of the City a full report and detailed statement of all receipts and expenditures. PURIFYING THE BENCH.

The Investigation Commenced by the Judiciary Committee—The Charges Submitted by the Bar Association.

However much the adherents of the Ring fait inclined to ridicule the threatened investigation into the manner of administering justice in New-York, the opening session of the Investigating Committee has at last been held, and commenced with an earnestness that becomes little mirror for any against which charges are sufficiently well established to warrant impeachment.

The Judiciary Committee met at the Fifth-avenue Hotel at 4 o'clock P. M. yesterday, but for at least an hour before the opening of the first session of the inquiry a crowd of citizens, prominent lawyers, had assembled in the hall of the hotel, and these discussed with much energy the probable issue of the pending investigation. The Committee sat in secret session, and the remaining proceedings will be made public only as the Committee may see fit to direct. It was thought that yesterday afternoon nothing would be done save the arrangement of the preliminaries, but it will be seen that the business done was of some importance. Of the Committee there were present Messrs. Prince, Niles, Flammer, Strahan, Tobey, Vedder, Hill, and Tilden. At 4½ o'clock Messrs. JOSEPH M. VAN COTT, JOHN E. PARSONS, and ALBERT STORY, forming a Committee from the Bar Association, went before the Committee and presented first their general charges and then the specifications, against Judges CARDOZO and BARNARD. The reading of these and their subsequent discussion by the Committee occupied the time until 6¼ o'clock. A resolution was then passed which is as follows in substance:

At present each of the Judges, accompanied by not more than two counsel, may be present during the sessions of the Committee as their respective cases may be taken up, and they shall be permitted to make such suggestions and ask such questions as may be allowed by the Committee. The Bar Association shall be represented by three counsel, but counsel on either side shall not be permitted to raise objections or make arguments as to the admissibility of evidence.

It was also decided that all the proceedings of the Committee should be done in secret session, and that the Judges should be at once notified of the charges against them. In anticipation of the action of the Bar Association, both Judges BARNARD and CARDOZO had their legal representatives at the hotel ready to answer the call of the Committee. Brutus ANDREWS and E. L. FANCHER represented Judge BARNARD, and E. H. OWEN and Ex-Judge Fullerton represented Judge CARDOZO. None of these gentlemen were allowed before the Committee, but after the adjournment they were recognized by Mr. Pinsom and verbally notified on behalf of their clients that charges had been made and that the defendants would be heard before the Committee. This morning formal written notices will be served upon both BARNARD and CARDOZO, and the charges against the latter will be heard this afternoon. It is the Committee's intention of the Committee after today to commence their sessions at 9 o'clock in the morning, and hold them, if necessary, late into each night, in order that their labors may be finished in such time as will admit of their returning to Albany to take part in the discussion of the new charter. The members also intend to hold interviews outside the matters before them thoroughly, and to act throughout with the utmost fairness.

A Card from Judge McCunn.

To the Editor of The New-York Times:

A malicious and wicked slander has crept in among your news items, this morning, in regard to myself, every word of which is without the slightest shadow of foundation. I was young, years ago, when I was elevated to the high position I have the honor to hold, and I have endeavored in every possible way, both as a lawyer and as a man, to reflect credit on my high office. This I have endeavored to do for two reasons: First, as an example to my young countrymen coming here, and next to have the good will of those among whom I reside, and for the sake of my own dear ones I may leave behind. I know well that I may not be free from bias, however impartial I may conduct myself, but my purity of purpose has never been questioned. I now repeat that every single word of the slander in your columns of this morning in regard to me, is wickedly false in the extreme. Such slanders cannot avail the vile, worthless creature who is their author, unless it can entirely his depraved appetite for low battening upon the vile envying only to the author. May I request you to give this a place in your columns at the same time and oblige, yours, truly,

J. H. MCCUNN.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES

The City's Record for Yesterday of Arrests, Inquests and Accidents.

Revolutionist Justice—A Burglar Comes to Grief—Death in the Tombs—A Jury Summons—Police Officers—Arrest of Confidence Operators—Death on the Rail.

RETRIBUTIVE JUSTICE.

Unsuccessful Attempt of Burglars to Rob a Store in Duane-Street—One of the Young Fellows Proves the Worst and Receives Serious Injuries.

Soon after 7 o'clock yesterday morning THOMAS GERGO and CHARLES LEWIS, porters at No. 22 Thomas-street, upon opening the rear windows of the shop which gave a view of the area of the premises of JOSEPH ARNOLD, dealer in fancy products, at No. 146 Duane-street, discovered a man lying on the pavement of the area covered with blood. They immediately gave an alarm, and the wounded man was taken to the Fifth Precinct Station-house. He was perfectly sensible, and in reply to the questions of Capt. PETTY, said that he is a native of Maryland, thirty-five years of age, and that his name is CHARLES FROST, but he did not know, upon being pressed, why he had received his injuries. These being examined by Surgeon OXTON were found to be very serious, as they consisted of a fracture of the skull and a fracture of the right arm. The ambulance from Park Hospital was sent for, and upon arriving at the station-house and learning the nature of the case Dr. AMARILL delivered to Capt. PETTY a letter which he had found under his door at the hospital when he opened it in the morning, of which the following is a literal copy:

"To the Park Hospital. There is a man fell off a house Duane-street, near West Broadway, he is the very way back of Arnold's Restaurant. Oblige Mother."

The injured man was conveyed to Park Hospital, and Capt. PETTY, acting on the first message in the letter, proceeded to make an investigation. His discoveries led to the conclusion that during Saturday night the premises had been entered by three burglars, from the roof, to which they had gained access through the second-story window of No. 141 Duane-street. After gaining an entrance, by forcing open the sashes, they had gone to work upon the safe, large enough for a man, which stood either for the storage of valuable articles or for the storage of valuable articles. They succeeded in opening one of them, only to find it entirely empty, and had then expended much vain labor upon the others, as they did not succeed in opening another door. Then carrying their selves to a portable piano, they opened several cases, taking feathers, boxes of cigars and some valuable silver plate used in the Jewish service, all of which were found in the upper part, where they had been carried by the thieves. The thieves then, as they supposed, for additional booty, ran up stairs, while there became alarmed, and rushed hastily out. Those men have passed out upon the glass-roof of a narrow extension, and have fallen from there to the area where he was found. The thieves abandoned their booty, namely, hammer, one large and four small wedges, two large and one small chisel, two three-foot long sledge bed-stick, and a willow-basket in which was a plate containing silver-ware and a large sausage. On the person of FROST was he was searched at the Station-house was found an open-faced gold watch with a gold chain attached, and a key that he had, he had fallen, an elegant pistol, $7 in bill, and a piece of paper on which was written "FELDMAN, BRICHMANN & CO." and "HAMIL & BOOTH," both firms being wholesale leather dealers. It is believed that the injuries of FROST will prove fatal.

THE DEATH IN THE TOMBS.

Inquest Yesterday—A Police Sergeant and Sergeant Contradict Each Other on Oath—Both are Censured by the Jury.

An inquest was held, yesterday, by Coroner SCHIRMER, in the case of JOHN D. DUGGAN, whose death in the Tombs Prison under aggravating circumstances has been mentioned in the TIMES. GEORGE C. CROLIUS, Sergeant of the Third Precinct, testified that deceased was taken into the Station-house about 3 P. M. on Thursday last by Officer KELLY, who charged him with intoxication. Deceased gave his name as JOHN DUGGAN and said he had no home. In reply to the questions of the Sergeant he said he had been drinking liquor and smoked opium. CROLIUS ordered him to be taken down-stairs, and shortly afterwards visited him and found him sitting by the stove. Deceased said he felt sick, and asked for brandy, which CROLIUS declined to furnish him, but offered to get him some coffee, which deceased refused. Dr. SAMUEL H. ORTON was then with CROLIUS, and stated that after he had examined the deceased he had expressed the opinion that deceased had been drinking. According to CROLIUS, Dr. ORTON asked what was done with such cases, and being told by CROLIUS that men under the influence of liquor were sent to the Tombs, directed the Sergeant to act in the usual way. He said he did so, and was accordingly sent to Court as a drunken man.

Dr. SAMUEL H. ORTON having said that he is a Police Surgeon, attached to the Third and Fifth Precincts, testified as to his connection with the case. He went down, and saw deceased sitting by the stove; he had his name, which he said was DUGGAN; I asked him where he had been the night before, and he said he had stopped at the Station-house, as he had the night before; I asked him where he lived; he answered at No. 32 Pike-street, but that he was a stranger in New-York; I asked him how long he had been in New-York; I said to him that he looked sick, and asked him if he wanted something to eat; he said he had plenty to eat, but was sick; I then felt his pulse and put my hand upon his chest; I found the action of the heart very feeble; pulsation about eighty-five per minute; I arrived at the conclusion from my examination that the man was suffering from extreme exhaustion, in consequence, probably, of debauch and from exposure; I then went upstairs and had the Sergeant; the man had been leading a vagrant life, was very much debilitated, and should be sent at once to Bellevue Hospital, but as they would not take him there he should be sent to the care of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction; I then left the Station-house; I did not make the remark that the prisoner was under the influence of liquor; I did not know that he was to be sent to the Tombs.

The other facts of the case which have been published were then put in evidence, and the jury rendered a verdict that death had been caused by pneumonia and phthisis pulmonalis, and added: "We censure Sergeant CROLIUS and Third Precinct, and Dr. SAMUEL H. ORTON, for not ascertaining the condition of deceased when in the Station-house, and for not sending him to the Hospital, instead of the Tombs."

Arrest of Female Confidence Operators—Stolen Goods Recovered.

EVA ST. VALLE and LIZZIE DAVIS, who are said to be experienced confidence operators, were arrested, Sunday night, by the Central Detectives and locked up at Police Headquarters on numerous charges. Yesterday morning, it is alleged, EVA ST. VALLE attempted to commit suicide in her cell by hanging herself to the bars of her window, but was detected in time to prevent any serious result, and was taken to Bellevue Hospital for an antidote. On the other hand, it was stated by the officers in charge of the detective office that the woman had been taken with convulsions, and had not attempted to hang herself.

The prisoners are charged with their common method of operation, namely, by representing themselves as wealthy ladies in seeking purchases which were to be paid for on delivery. In this case it was the custom of the women to send the porter at the house to which he had been directed, and taking the goods from him under pretense of showing them to their mother, leave him alone in a room, after whom the women disappeared, leaving the porter, who was proved invariably to be a stranger in the house where they had just hired rooms, and would always pass directly to the street after leaving the premises. They seem to have been very secret, so, accordingly, have been made against them by the following firms for the amount of goods stolen: BARNETT WILLIAMS, No. 79 Broad-street, $61; JOHNSON, BURNS & CO., No. 110 University-place, lace, $161; LEMAIR, HARRIS & ARNOLD, No. 181 Sixth-avenue, shoes, $17; CHARLES FRENCH, No. 860 Broadway, shawl, $22; SH. BRADBURY & SON, Bowery and Bleecker-street, dry goods, $18; JOHNSON, COMPTON & CO., No. 58 Canal-street, silks, $18; WM. A. FULLER, No. 28 Grand-street, silks, $18.

Despite these three very serious charges, the prisoners, when arraigned, exhibited much coolness and assurance. The second prisoner had been baffled by the assistance of the porters, who had declined to part with the goods until they had the money for them. The second prisoner is yet detained at Police Headquarters.

Sudden Death in the Tombs—Arrest of Another Confidence Operator.

Another of these affairs which are common to the Fourth Ward, occurred last night in the saloon of ROBERT BRANNAN, the 'Bowery and Pearl-street, during which the bar-keeper, Officer [illegible] of No. 219 Mulberry-street, was badly stabbed in the abdomen by an unknown man. The facts in the case are as follows: [illegible] Bowery, and [illegible] of Mulberry-street, and [illegible] of Pearl-street, and [illegible] of Mulberry-street, and [illegible] of Pearl-street, and [illegible] of Mulberry-street, and [illegible] of Pearl-street
